Peculiar pleas don't sway electoral voter

Sharon Sharp makes her mark on history this morning.

Mrs. Sharp, GOP committee woman in Elk Grove Township, is headed for Springfield where she will be one of 538 Americans electing the next President of the United States.

She is a member of the Electeral College, an honor she concedes was bestowed upon her for her Republican volunteer work in a state carried by Gerald Ford in November.

The Arlington Heights resident plans to mark her ballot for Ford, despite pleas from other candidates for her vote.

SINCE SHE was named an elector, she has received a number of letters from so-called candidates asking her support.

They are not from big names like President-elect Jimmy Carter or contender Eugene McCarthy or even Roger McBride, 1972's maverick elector who was the Libertarian candidate for president this year.

Instead, the letters bear household names like Tilden W. Johnsen of Los Angeles and Robert L. Brewster of Albuquerque, N.M., both of whom spent considerable sums seeking electoral votes.

Johnson's main issue, according to his letter to Mrs. Sharp, is to end a conspiracy as big as Watergate — the control by "foreign sources" of the editorial management of the major American television networks and newspapers through payments of "billions of dollars."

BREWSTER, who repeatedly misspells the word "electoral" in his letter to Mrs. Sharp, says a "terrible earthquake" will ravage California if he isn't elected.

"I am sure you are aware that a hurricane (first in 10 years) damaged the New York City area after the Democratic Convention failed to nominate me as their presidential candidate," he said. "Furthermore, the newspapers reported that approximately 60 minor earthquakes occurred in California after the November election."

If she was so inclined, Mrs. Sharp could cast her ballot for one of these candidates — or for anybody else for that matter.

While some states have the power to fine electors if they don't follow the popular vote, Illinois has no such law. Nowhere in the country is an elector required to vote for a specific candidate.

ONLY SEVEN electors have ever broken tradition. McBride was the last to do so, voting for Libertarian candidate Theodora Nathan in 1972 in Virginia, a state that voted for Nixon.

"There's always a temptation for people to buck the system. I'm surprised it hasn't happened more," Mrs. Sharp says. "It's a foolish thing to leave this open."

If she wanted to vote for someone other than Ford, she says, the only penalty she would risk is the wrath of the Republican Party. But, she says "I could go down there (to Springfield) and say 'Hey gang, I want to go down in history, and I've got this ego problem, and I'm going to vote for Sharon Sharp'."

Mrs. Sharp says she doesn't have any desire to vote for anyone other than Ford. There's only one thing that limits the excitement of it all.

"I would have rather been voting for a winner," she says. "What gets me the most is going to Springfield and voting for President Ford knowing that he's already selling his house.

Wants to 'finish job'

Ryan announces bid for reelection

Arlington Heights Pres. James T. Ryan, saying he wants to finish the job he began last year, says he will seek a second term in April.

Ryan, who named Ed Murnane as his campaign chairman, is the first candidate to officially enter the mayoral race.

"But I don't intend or want to run unopposed," he said during the weekend. "I want a number of people to run for the office so we can have some dialogue going and so the people can have a choice."

Ryan, 42, said he believes his record as president will garner him "a mandate and the broadest kind of direction from the people as possible."

CITING THE repeal of the utility tax as "the single highest priority I have," Ryan pledged to work for its revocation at the Dec. 20 board meeting.

"I would consider it a deep, personal loss if the tax is not abolished on the 20th," he said. "If I fail, I will use every effort to see that it is abolished in the fututre and will work three or four times harder to get reelected because I feel the people of Arlington Heights consider it an unfair tax."

Other priorities, Ryan said, are broadening the tax base by developing downtown and attracting industry, reducing vandalism, cutting governmental costs and preserving what he called the "single-family nature" of the community.

"We've got to broaden our tax base because unless we do something about the tax problem there are going to be a lot of people who won't be able to afford to live here," he said.

Ryan said he plans to campaign as he did in 1975, ringing doorbells and soliciting votes through the mail.

HE ADMITTED HIS all-out campaign effort is linked to his hope for possible future statewide political office, but added, "I've always filled out any term I've been elected to and don't intend to make any exceptions this time.

"I haven't closed the door on the possibility of political aspirations beyond Arlington Heights," he said, "But right now I'm interested in being reelected for a four-year term as mayor."

He also said he hasn't "foreclosed" on the possibility of forming his own slate of trustee candidates and, although he is not soliciting it, said he would accept support from the Caucus.

"I think we're going to win," Ryan said, "but in the final analysis it will depend on whether people think I've been doing a good job."

Unit mulls building tax break

by KURT BAER

New commercial, industrial and large apartment buildings may be in for a tax break in 1977 under a proposal by suburban members of the Cook County Board.

The proposal would reduce assessments on new commercial, industrial and apartment buildings with six units or more to 17 per cent of their market value for four years.

Normally, the assessment on commercial and industrial buildings is 33 per cent and apartment buildings are assessed at 40 per cent of market value.

Board members Carl Hansen, Mount Prospect, and Joseph A. Tecson proposed the countywide assessment reduction as an alternative to a plan offered by County Assessor Thomas M. Tully that would reduce assessments on new commercial buildings only in specially designated blighted areas.

"Work for our building trades and capital investment of all kinds is lagging in Cook County," Hansen said. "I believe the incentives should be applied across the board. We have to look at the problem in total."

THE PLAN TO cut assessment on new commercial buildings will be the subject of upcoming public hearings by the county board finance committee. Business interests and commercial real estate brokers generally support the idea.

Howard Krafsur, of Bennet and Kahnweiler Associates, developers of Centex Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village, said Cook County and Illinois must take steps to keep and attract industry.

"Industry has moved from Chicago to the suburbs and now out of state. If they don't do something they're going to find real problems in 25 to 35 years."

Krafsur said taxes on a new industrial building in Northwest Cook County will be significantly higher than on the identical building in DuPage County.

"If the question is has Cook County lost buildings to other counties because of taxes, the answer is yes," he said.

The full ramifications of the lower assessment proposal still are not known, Hansen said. Some of the tax impact information is being compiled now.

Dist. 23 voters OK tax rate hike

By better than a 3-1 margin, residents in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 approved a referendum authorizing a 60 per cent tax rate increase.

The results of the referendum were 943 "yes" votes, 288 "no" votes and 9 spoiled ballots, Supt. Edward Grodsky said.

"It's the largest victory in the state in years as far as ratio is concerned," he said. "I'm thrilled for the children in the district that will be able to continue with the excellent educational programs we offer."

CALLING THE VOTER turnout "exceptional," Board Pres. Melvin Lace said the district has never seen numbers like these before.

"When you get 48 absentee ballots you know a lot of people care," Grodsky said.

Passage of the referendum allows the board of education to increase the tax rate in the education fund from $1.60 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation, where it has been since 1964, to $2.20 per $100 of assessed valuation, said James Hendren, district business manager.

Taxpayers, however, will not pay any tax rate increase until 1978, Lace said.

SIMILAR DEFERRED compensation programs for government workers were made possible by state legislation adopted in Springfield in 1974.

Village employes upon retirement are entitled to $500 a month in combined Social Security and Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund monies. Under a deferred compensation plan, employes could set aside all or part of their salary in a savings account that would not be subject to income tax until the money is withdrawn at retirement age.

A retired individual would fall under a lower tax bracket and pay fewer taxes on his savings after 25 years

TAX BILLS received in 1978 probably will show a 15 cent increase in the education fund and a 15 cent de-

She's busy greeting Plains tourists

'Miss Lillian' anticipates her son's term

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — "Miss Lillian" Carter says she still can't believe her son will soon be President of the United States.

"It hasn't hit me yet," she said. "I want it to hit me. I never dreamed he would be the President."

But the white-haired, dynamic mother of the President-elect, a celebrity in her own right, also predicted "he is going to be our greatest president . . . if he does everything he says he will."

At 78, Mrs. Carter has become the main tourist attraction in Plains. For about four hours a day, "because Jimmy is so busy," she greets visitors from a rocking chair in the Main Street depot that served as campaign headquarters.

Lillian Carter

IT'S GETTING to be a little too much. She says her arm is "solid bruises" from people clutching at her, wanting to shake her hand.

"I'm getting irritable," she said. "I'm going to have to taper off. I have to tell them, please don't touch. But the time to worry is when they stop coming. All these people, the majority of them voted for Jimmy. I want to have a good rapport with them. I want them to vote again in four years."

Will he win again in four years? The reply comes softly: "If he's a good president he will. If he doesn't lose his health."

What about her son's promise never to lie, and his "born again" religious faith?

"HE HAS NEVER told me a story. I don't mean white lies like 'gee, you look beautiful.' He was taught by his father that a lie was the worst thing in the world. I could tell a lie with the greatest of ease.

"His Christianity is like his breathing . . . I'm just a Southern Baptist. I'm not as religious."

Vehemently denying reports that she and daughter-in-law Rosalynn do not get along, Miss Lillian said, "I never discuss her. She's a private person. She's one of my best friends. We never had but two small arguments. She loves me and I love her."

Asked if she was disturbed about son Jimmy's Playboy Magazine interview, in which he acknowledged lusting in his heart after women, she said it bothered her for a couple of days. She recalls she was fixing breakfast when he said, "Mother did you hear about Playboy? I was just quoting the Bible. I used some words I shouldn't have."

MRS. CARTER said she was comforted by calls from several ministers, one of whom told her "every man from 40 to 80 knows exactly what he was talking about. Every man has the same thoughts."

She said Jimmy never chides brother Billy for his beer drinking. And Billy, like his mother, stands in for Jimmy in greeting visitors.

Sometimes the visitors want too much.

"May I kiss you?" one man asked Miss Lillian.

"Hell no," she said.

Dist. 23 voters OK tax rate hike

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 voters approved, by a 3-1 margin, a referendum authorizing a 60-cent tax increase. There were 943 'yes' votes and 288 'no' votes cast in Saturday's referendum, Supt. Edward Grodsky said. In the past 12 years, voters in the district have defeated five referendums. Passage of the referendum will allow the board of education to increase the tax rate in the district from $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.20 per $100, said James Hendren, district business manager. The 60-cent increase will be levied gradually over six years and property owners' tax bills will not reflect the first increase until 1978, Hendren said. The district faces a $278,000 deficit and has already borrowed as much as legally allowed, Board Pres. Melvin Lace said.

Towns to discuss legal action

Officials from Des Plaines and many of the 39 other communities that buy Chicago water will meet tonight to discuss possible legal action to prevent a 21 per cent increase in water rates. Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, the organizer of the opposition, said the suburban communities are considering taking action against Chicago because they believe their communities already are being charged improperly for water and that the rate increase will make the situation worse. "We should not be paying for things that are solely bentficial to the people of Chicago," he said. Blase said he will recommend the filing of a class action lawsuit by the suburbs to prevent the proposed increase expected to be passed by the Chicago City Council. The Des Plaines City Council last week voted unanimously to pay up to $2,000 to participate in legal action against Chicago because of the proposed rate increase.

OPEC economists meet to discuss oil price raise

DOHA, QATAR (UPI) — Economists of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Sunday began a three-day meeting to prepare for the summit conference later this week on the first oil price increase in a year.

OPEC delegates gathered in the tightly guarded Gulf Hotel overlooking oil tankers in the blue waters of the Persian Gulf.

Guards patrolled the hotel grounds to prevent a repetition of the kidnaping of OPEC ministers by guerrillas at Vienna last year. Machine guns were set up behind the hotel.

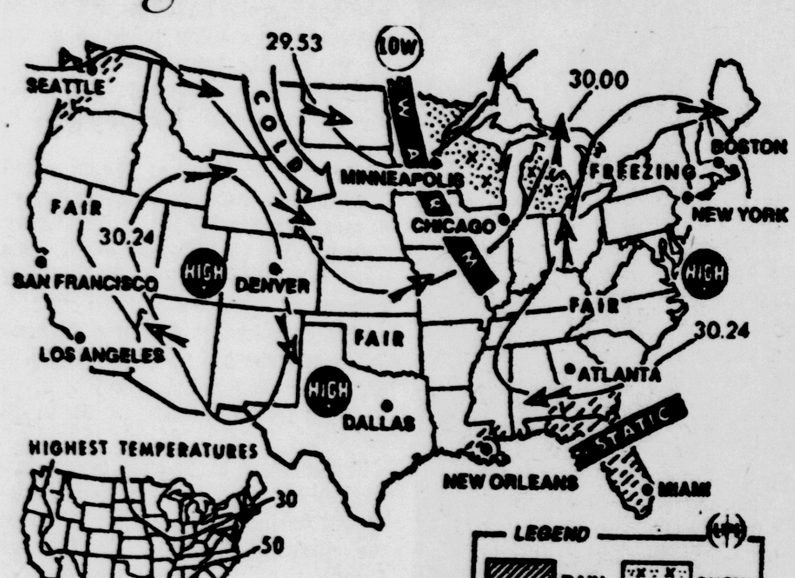

AN INCREASE of 10 per cent in the price of petroleum — enough to add $12 billion to the industrial world's annual fuel bill — has been forecast by many economy experts. It would be the first increase in a year.

This would be a compromise between moderate increase proposed by Gulf Arab states with large oil surpluses and the 15 per cent more asked by heavily populated countries, including Iran, which have pinned ambitious development programs to oil earnings.

The Gulf states reportedly fear that a substantial increase could damage Western economies, in which they have invested heavily and on which they depend for their own development.

The United States last week again opposed any price increase. "Higher oil prices would pose considerable risks to the already sluggish pace of economic recovery in industrialized countries," said a State Department study.

Broken layered clouds are seen over the Great Lakes with lower, more uniform clouds in the upper Ohio Valley and intermixed with snow cover areas over the northern Plains. Some snow can be seen also in the Rockies and over New England where sunshine is being enjoyed along with most areas of the West and southern Florida.

Journalism professor says:

'Frown may catch you in a lie'

ATHENS, Ohio (UPI) — A furrowed forehead. Arching eyebrows. The blink of an eye, perhaps a frown. All of these could be signs that you are telling a lie.

At least that's the theory of Ohio University journalism professor Roger Bennett, who is studying facial expressions in an effort to provide an invaluable tool to journalists.

Bennett says subconscious facial expressions, ordinarily occuring in a fraction of a second, may give people away when they are not telling the truth.

"The untrained person wouldn't notice them," Bennett said.

BUT THE VETERAN reporter has developed a training film for his classes which can be slowed down and gradually speeded up until the viewer can pick up the "lie" expressions.

The method is not new, Bennett says, having been used in psychology and by students of nonverbal communication. But, he decided to try and apply the technique directly to journalism.

"Reporters need more tools than just a sharp pencil, a notepad and a list of good questions," said Bennett, who is doing the research for his doctorate degree. "I wanted a more scientific approach to teach to my students.

"In the study I trained people to lie and then videotaped them without their knowlege. I then had groups of students study the films to see if they could catch the liars. They could do so about 80 per cent of the time.

"What they look for is an eyeblink or other facial expressions, such as a person's jaw dropping. Normally, an eyeblink takes about one-fifth of a second, but in the case of the liars we found it to be a 40th of a second. That's all but invisible to the untrained eye and without slowing down the tape."

BENNETT IS improving his training film by incorporating videotape of the Senate Watergate proceedings.

"It's on record who lied at certain times and who was telling the truth," he said. "So we can put the theory to a sound test. If the technique had been perfected before Watergate it could have been a great aid and may have greatly speeded up the proceedings."

Bennett says he became interested in the idea after 12 years as a journalist.

"There's nothing more frustrating than being lied to by a source," he said. "If reporters are going to print the truth, they have to find it first, and I think this method will help."

TWO CHILDREN from a nursery school wander through winter wonderland of Petersen's Tree Farm. The nursery school children and supervisors hauled away a 10-foot Scotch pine.

Christmas tree farming brings hugs, exhaustion

by PAUL GORES

"You can see why we love it," said G. Chapman Petersen, the owner of a 5-acre Christmas tree farm in Barrington Hills.

He just had helped a group of nursery school children and their supervisors load a Scotch pine into a pickup truck. Several of the children hugged Petersen, and the entire group thanked him and his wife Betsy by singing two Christmas carols before heading back to school.

"On the weekends it's really fun," Petersen said. "People bring their children and it really becomes kind of a family affair."

PETERSEN, a real estate lawyer and an Arlington Heights High School graduate, has been operating the pick-your-own tree farm for six years. He uses the front five acres of his 10-acre lot for growing 6,000 Scotch pine trees. About 3,500 of them already have been sold this Christmas season he said.

Petersen and his wife, not seeming to mind the cold, lead customers through their miniature forest to find a tree that suits the customer best. When the customers find one they like, Petersen or his wife fell the tree and drag it back to the driveway.

On the weekends they hire high school boys to help with the cutting and towing.

"We try to get boys who are high school athletes — football players or wrestlers," Petersen said. "It's a tough job and you're pretty exhausted by the end of the day."

TREES UP TO 12-feet tall are harvested at the farm, and many of the best trees are picked out and reserved well in advance of Christmas, Petersen said.

The rush for trees begins right after Thanksgiving, Petersen said. He said he sold about 250 last weekend.

"It's a practice at our house to put up our Christmas tree on Thanksgiving," Petersen said. "We really don't get another chance."

PETERSEN runs his law and investment practice from his home on the tree farm. H said during the Christmas season, though, he spends more time outside the house than inside.

A lot of work is done in the summer, Petersen said, when the tree are sheared daily for three weeks to ensure their cone-shape at harvest time in December.

Each year's harvest is replaced with tiny seedlings that ar staked out in an area measuring six square feet. It takes six years beofre a Scotch pine tree is tall enoughfor harvest.

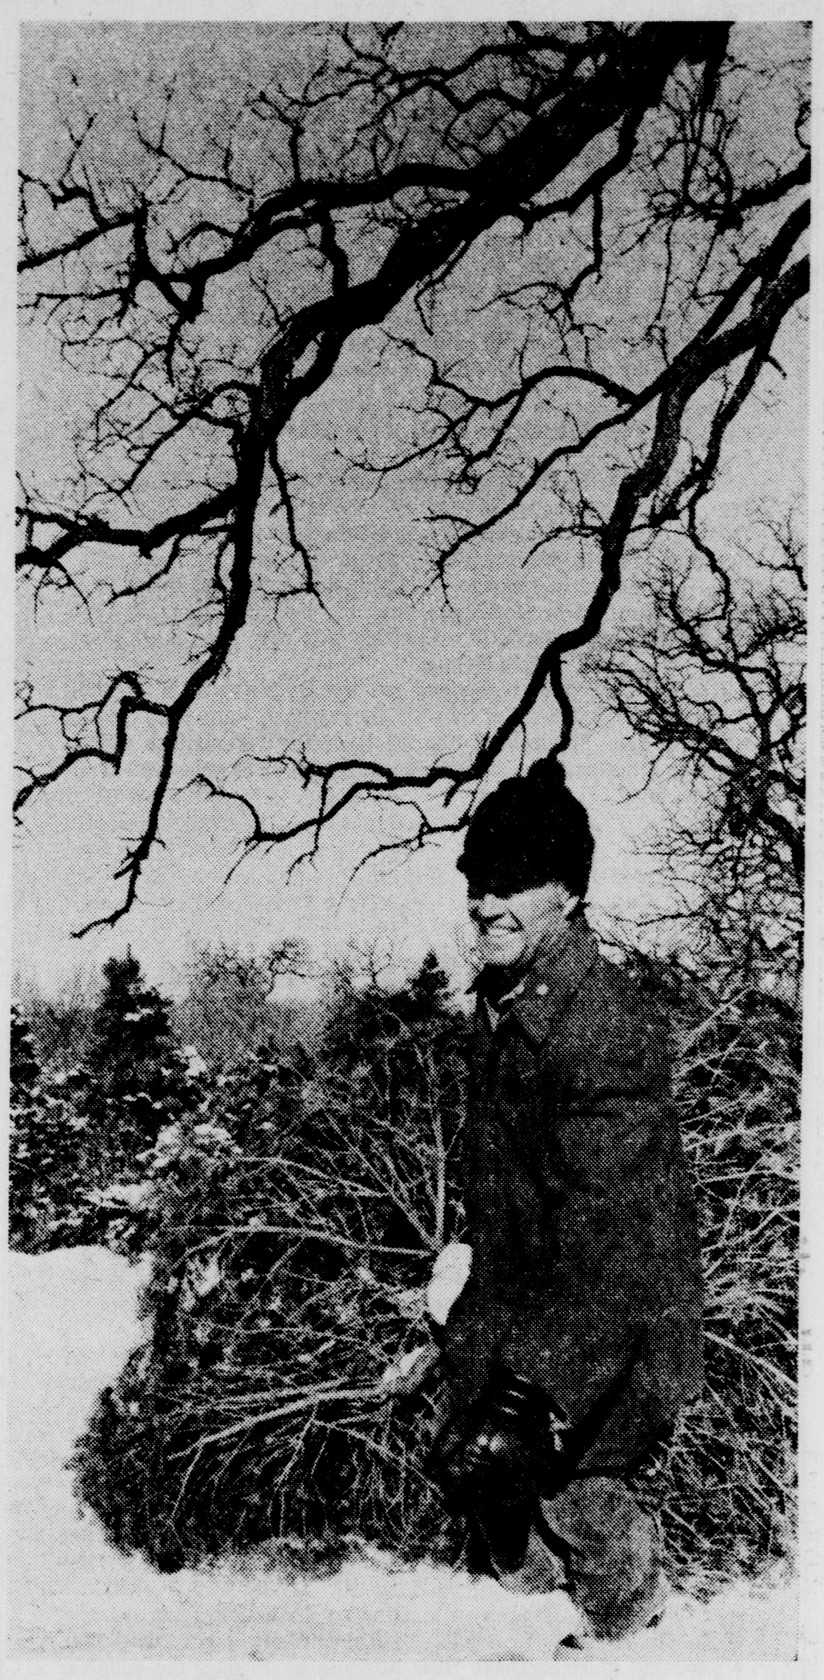

Petersen started the farm about 13 years ago as a project to help his children Cindy, 7 and Scott, 3 ,finance their college educations. He wants to teach them to run the tree farm when hey are old enough, Petersen said.

THE IDEA GREW out of his real estate and investment knowledge.

"In my job I'm always looking for a way to make a piece of property profitable," Petersen said. "I decided the best way to use my front five acres would be to have a tree farm."

"By now just enough people know about us so that we've been able to harvest the crop every year," Petersen added. "It's a fun project because it's associated with a happy time of the year. But we're totally exhausted by Christmas time."

The trees on Petersen's farm cost $2 per foot plus one dollar. It is on Springwood Lane between Sutton and Bateman roads, off Ill. Rte. 62, about 1½ miles north of Ill. Rte. 59. The Petersen Tree Farm will be open during daylight hours until Dec. 23.

CHAP PETERSEN drags away one of the 6,000 Scotch pine Christmas trees that will be harvested from a five-acre tree farm in the front yard of his home.

Conservative Caucus sees Congress control by 1980

by STEVE BROWN

The leaders of The Conservative Caucus, a national political lobby, predict they will control the Congress by 1980, saying they will use existing political parties rather than start a major third party movement.

More than 300 caucus leaders gathered in Chicago during the weekend to map plans for the 1978 Congressional election.

Howard Philips, the organization's national director, told an opening session that by 1978 there will be caucus chapters in all 435 congressional districts. He also said a network of independent local newspapers will be established to "get the facts out about what senators and congressmen are doing in Washington."

ROBERT VIGUERIE, publisher of the Conservative Digest and a professional fund raiser, urged the group to consider backing conservative candidates who run as Democrats.

"We should not put all of our eggs in the Republican's November election basket," he said.

"Our resources are certainly better than Jimmy Carter's were four years ago," he said.

Viguerie said that the group's only limitation may be conservatives themselves.

"Our number one weakness is a lack of leadership. We must work to develop leaders," Viguerie said.

THE ORGANIZATION also began to organize a "shadow government" of conservatives who will monitor the actions of the Carter administration and Congress.

The discussion of a third political party was dropped from the activities agenda Thursday night. Some leaders of the organization want the group to switch from a lobbying organization to a political party.

The caucus leaders, however, decided to wait to see if the Republican National Committee elects a conservative chairman in January and until a law suit brought by former U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy which challenges many federal election requirements is for independent presidential candidates, is ruled upon.

DONALD TETZLAFF, the caucus' 12th Congressional District director and chairman of the Independent Conservative Party, said he went to session with an open mind.

He criticized Republican promises that the GOP would gain seats in Congress in the 1978 elections and suggested the national organization might have to switch from a lobbying group to a political party so that conservatives can win more seats in Congress.

The local organization endorsed and supported candidates for the Illinois General Assembly in the Nov. election.

Some doctors oppose swine flu shots

ATLANTA (UPI) — At least some of the nation's private physicians either oppose the swine flu immunization program or are lukewarm in supporting it, according to surveys commissioned by the national Center for Disease Control.

The surveys, conducted in October and November, also showed that most Americans learned of the swine flu immunization program from newspapers or television — not from their doctors.

The American Medical Association and many other medical groups, including the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Lung Association, have announced their support of the $135 million dollar program.

But the CDC surveys showed that some doctors have told their patients not to get the flu shot, that some oppose the program generally and that some have made no recommendation concerning the inoculations.

THE CDC reported that as of a week ago only 35 million Americans had been inoculated, a total far below the program's expectations.

The public opinion surveys were conducted by Opinion Research Corp. for the Bureau of Health Education of CDC. They were based on 1,513 interviews in October and 1,464 in November.

The samplings showed that 97 per cent of those interviewed had heard about swine influenza and 57 per cent answered "yes" to the question: "Do you intend to get a shot to prevent swine flu?"

Of those who had heard of swine flu, however, only 12 per cent contacted in the October survey reported having learned of the vaccination from their doctors.

In the November survey, the percentage of persons hearing about the swine flu program from their doctors had risen to 25 per cent. But most still said they learned of the program through the news media.

An appendix to the October survey listed 224 answers to the questions "Why have you decided not to get the shot?

Some of the answers to those questions, picked at random, included:

"My doctor advised me not to get the shot."

"I have a health condition, so my doctor won't permit the shot."

"My doctor recommends me not to get the shot."

"My doctor hasn't said anything."

"I have to check with my doctor."

Holding Carter-Congress peace may be problem: O'Neill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker-designate Thomas P. O'Neill foresees a period of peace between the new Congress and the new president, but he is concerned there may be a problem maintaining it.

The Massachusetts lawmaker, who will be elected the new speaker when the 9th Congress convenes on Jan. 4, said in an interview that President-elect Jimmy Carter has initial widespread support among the strong Democratic majorities of the House and Senate.

"There's going to be peace for awhile, but the problem will be holding it together as time goes along," said O'Neill, who has met at least three times with Carter.

"Even the conservatives in our party want to see Carter be a success. but how long is that going to last? That's what we have to watch along the way."

O'Neill said he talked with Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., a candidate for Senate Democratic leader, and told him "there's a newness with these Carter people, so we got to help them."

O'Neill assumes the most powerful legislative office in the nation at a time marking the end of eight years of battle between a Democratic Congress and a Republican president — a fight that created a deep suspicion of the White House on the part of Congress.

Much of the suspicion will continue because the next president, despite his party label, is an unknown quantity to Congress. He is the first president since Dwight Eisenhower who did not come out of Congress.

Actor Jack Cassidy burned to death in Hollywood apartment fire

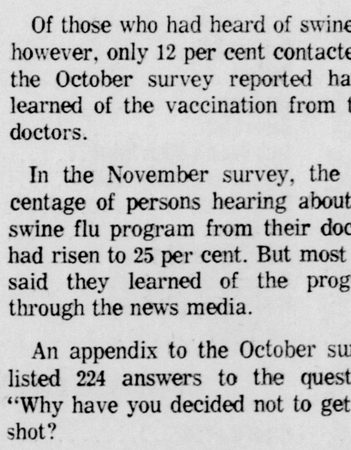

People

• Jack Cassidy, a broadway, movie and television star for three decades, was burned to death Sunday in a fire that swept his penthouse apartment apparently after he fell asleep on a couch following a party. The body was so charred identification had to be made through dental records. Cassidy, a handsome Irishman who starred in dozens of musical comedies, dramas, and TV specials lived alone on the top floor of a four-story apartment building in a fashionable section of West Hollywood.

• Painter Elmyr De Hory, the subject of hoaxer Clifford Irving's best-seller "Fake!" has died of an apparent overdose of barbiturates. De Hory, 65, was found dead Saturday in his home on the Mediterranean island of Ibiza, Spain. He had been in court Tuesday to fight possible extradition to France for alleged painting frauds. His attorney, Rafael Perera said: "He was very worried about the ruling. If the Spanish court granted the extradition, he was afraid that once inside French prisons, his life would be in danger."

• A city employe who turned off the water at Kansas City Mayor Charles Wheeler's home several months ago in an incident some city officials termed "Water-shutoff-gate" has quit his job in the water department. James Staton, 28, said he will begin his duties this week as associate pastor of a Concord, N.C. church and continue his seminary studies in Charlotte, N.C.

• President-elect Jimmy Carter, riding a high tide of national approval, said Sunday he will announce at least two, and possibly three new Cabinet-level appointments this week. Late Sunday afternoon Carter flew to Atlanta for two more days of interviews with prospective administration recruits.

New rabies shots less painful: doctor

In a major breakthrough, researchers have developed an effective and simplified new treatment for rabies, a physician said Sunday. The treatment involves only half a dozen shots with no side effects, Dr. Hilary Koprowski wrote in this week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, published in Chicago. Current methods involve 14 to 21 injections with frequent severe side reactions.

Koprokski reported on field trials in Iran in which 45 persons severely bitten by rabid gogs and wolves were treated with a new rabies vaccine. "This treatment," Koprowski said, "in contrast with past experience with other vaccines, resulted in protection of all individuals against rabies. Thus, almost a century after the postexposure treatment of humans was initiated, an effective tool for protecting man against rabies has finally been developed."

Children ask for Bionic playmates

Children who climb onto the laps of department store Santas this year are making their pitch for the "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Bionic Woman." A survey of 75 Sears and Roebuck "Santas" says the children are watching a lot of television this year. The poll — released in Chicago — which accounted for more than 70,000 whispering sessions with children, indicated that the first words out of the mouths of youngsters this year are "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Bionic Woman."

The Bionic Woman has edged out the Barbie doll, in its 18th year, for first place. After that, the survey said, were Baby Thataway and Baby Tenderlove. For the boys, the "Six Million Dollar Man" is followed by a Stretch Armstrong doll, bicycles and Evel Knievel toys.

Helicopter crash probed in Pontiac

The Federal Aviation Administration Sunday investigated the crash of a helicopter which plummeted to the ground Saturday about 200 yards from an apartment building in Pontiac. Illinois State Police said Sydney Smith, pilot of the Hughes 500-C helicopter, and Joseph Snell, a passenger, were taken to St. James Hospital in Pontiac. Both were listed in satisfactory condition. Damage was estimated at $125,000.

Smith said the helicopter began to go down after he heard a loud noise from the engine while landing. "I tried to gain altitude, when the copter lost power," he said.

Lawmakers returning to capitol

Lawmakers returning to the Capitol this week from a 10-day break in the fall veto session will have four days to make a final decision on some $95 million in veto overrides. Hanging over the legislators heads are warnings from Gov. Daniel Walker and Governor-elect James Thompson that the vetoes be left alone because of the state's shaky money situation. Legislators meet Tuesday at 4 p.m. and must complete their business by Friday, the deadline for any overrides of Gov. Daniel Walker's vetoes. If an override is not approved by Friday, Walker's veto will remain in effect.

Central counting of absentee ballots studied

by KURT BAER

A bill to permit centralized accounting of absentee ballots will be introduced next month in the Illinois General Assembly, Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper said Sunday.

The proposed change in the state election law is intended to avoid a recurrence of the problems in the November election in which thousands of absentee ballots in Cook County were not counted because they were not delivered to precinct polling places before 6 p.m.

A second voting bill that would allow county clerks to count absentee ballots that are post marked up until midnight on election day and delivered to the clerk within two days after the election, also will be introduced, Kusper said.

State Sen. Michael I. Brady, D-11th, and State Rep. Jane Barnes, R-8th, will cosponsor the bills. The legislative measures will be kept separate, Kusper said, because the proposal to accept late postmarked ballots is more controversial.

THE CENTRALIZED counting of ballots proposal will include safeguards as to how the ballots are received, stored and tallied, Kusper said. A reasonable number of observers representing political parties and civic groups would be permitted to watch the ballot counting, he said.

Central accounting would be optional in each county, according to Kusper's plan.

"It is a simple fact that only in Cook County, because of its size and the number of voters, does the delivery provision of the code present a seemingly impossible problem. Any effort to impose on other counties a solution to a problem that peculiarly is our own, would do nothing but invite opposition from other officials and threaten passage of the entire proposal," Kusper said.

Provision for accepting ballots with midnight postmarks, if adopted, would have to apply statewide.

"It is obviously necessary to close the election at some point, but is it really necessary to shut down the entire process on the day of election since officially the ballots are not canvassed until several days later, Kusper said.

STATE LEGISLATIVE action is necessary for both proposals because the Illinois Constitution requires election laws be uniform throughout the state. As long as counties are given the option of centralized accounting, the constitutional requirement would be met, Kusper said.

He said "watchful eyes" will ensure there is no fraud in accounting all the absentee ballots in one office instead of at individual polling places. But he said the number of observers will have to be realistic "or we may well find ourselves with hundreds of watchers most of whom will be unable to see anything."

Centralized counting and the proposal to extend the absentee voting deadline will help correct existing conditions under which many absentee ballots go uncounted, Kusper said.

Some 11,000 ballots came "pouring into the clerk's office" on election day in November and several hundred more ballots arrived after the election even though they were mailed in what should have been enough time for delivery.

"We'll never get all the ballots — the U.S. postal service and humans being what they are," Kusper said "but this is a step to significantly extend absentee voting rights."

Low-income housing lack hurts suburbs: survey

The deterioration of older neighborhoods in Chicago and its suburbs is a serious problem, say members of city and suburban housing commissions, but priority for federal aid should go to communities trying to achieve a diversity of economic, racial and ethnic residents.

In a survey conducted by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, the housing leaders were asked to assess the effects of racial and economic balance in Chicago and suburban communities and to list the priorities for rehabilitating declining neighborhoods.

Suburban and city housing commission members discussed the results of the survey at a workshop Saturday and considered proposals for reviving deteriorating neighborhoods.

NORTHWEST SUBURBS are not generally faced with the problems of neighborhood deterioration, but they will be asked by NIPC to study their low-income and minority housing needs if they apply for federal grants.

For example, Elk Grove Village, although relatively new, no longer has enough housing for the moderate-income families that originally founded the suburb, said Cathy Duoba, chairman of the village's housing commission.

Because persons who must move usually want to purchase better homes, the least desirable homes are left unsold and thus deteriorate, she said. However, too few moderately priced homes are built, she said, so those who earn middle incomes are forced to settle for the undesirable homes if they with to remain in the community.

"I used to think, 'Who the heck would want to live way out there?' Now it's not 'way out there,' and I live there," she said.

OTHER NORTHWEST suburbs besides Elk Grove Village face this same housing problem. Last week NIPC listed 53 suburbs in its six-county region that have more than 5,000 jobs and less than 2 per cent minority population or at least one low or moderately priced home or rental unit for every three jobs.

Northwest suburban communities on this list are Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

NIPC is the regional planning agency for Cook, Du Page, Lake, Kane, McHenry and Will counties and the clearinghouse for federal aid applications from local governments within the region.

Next year, NIPC is expected to adopt a permanent policy by which to measure a suburb's compliance with federal open housing laws. At that time, suburbs that do not comply could find it increasingly difficult to get NIPC endorsement of their federal grant applications.

Mrs. Duoba said Elk Grove Village is undertaking a housing study to find ways of providing more moderately priced housing for those who work in the village's large industrial section.

FEDERAL GUIDELINES preserve the right of a worker to be able to afford to live in or near the community he or she works in, she said, and one-third of the study will list possible steps that can be taken to meet those housing needs in the community, she said.

Mrs. Duoba stressed that suburban communities must begin to work now to meet the needs of long-time residents and nonresident workers.

"If you do nothing, the forces still go on around you and the status quo is no longer the status quo," she said. "We should accept our local planning responsibilities."

About 90 community housing leaders responded to the NIPC survey on the effects of neighborhood deterioration, and the findings formed the basis for the workshop.

Housing leaders of several close-in suburban communities, including west suburban Cicero and Bellwood, urged increased federal grants to revive the older neighborhoods and to encourage a racial and economic balance.

They asked for solutions to the problem of racially and economical integrating communities without c viding them into easily recognizab low-, middle-or high-income blocks into racial and ethnic areas.

Dist. 25 facing decline in enrollment: survey

A continuing enrollment decline will hit Arlington Heights Dist. 25, according to a recent count of preschoolers in the district.

A door-to-door canvass conducted by PTA members during November counted 2,101 preschoolers in Dist. 25, Gerald Williams, director of administration and planning, said.

PTA members last year counted 2,890 preschoolers in a similar canvass of the district, he said.

If the PTA's figures hold, Dist. 25 can expect 601 kindergarteners in 1977, 518 in 1978, 524 in 1979, 458 in 1980 and 413 in 1981, Williams said.

"The canvass shows we're probably not going to be surprised out there by an influx of students," he said. "It's one more piece of evidence to be considered when the board begins dis cussing school closings next month."

Current projections show the dis trict's enrollment declining 41 % in the next 10 years. Supt. Donak Strong has said it is increasingly diffi cult to maintain all of the district's schools because of the enrollment drop.

If schools are to be closed, a deci sion will be made by March or April, Board Pres. Joan Klussman said.

Possible plans call for closing either one elementary school and one junior high school and maintaining the current grade level organization or closing two junior highs and placing kindergarten through sixth grade students in elementary school and seventh and eighth grade students in junior high.

Finance unit to study utility tax repeal

The repeal of Arlington Heights' utility tax will be considered tonight by the village board's finance committee, along with a recommendation from the village administration that water rates be increased.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Several trustees already have said they favor repealing the 5 per cent utility tax at the end of the month when all projects it currently funds will be paid. Village Pres. James T. Ryan has asked the finance committee to submit a recommendation for the village board's Dec. 20 meeting.

Kenneth Bonder, village finance director, said Friday he has recommended that a 1 per cent utility tax be retained and used for operating purposes because he believes it would be ruled tax deductible by the Internal Revenue Service.

Bonder estimated that the village water rates will have to be raised from 63 cents per 1,000 gallons to 75 cents or more to cover the operating expenses of the system.

Village Christ child figure stolen

Arlington Heights police are investigating the theft of a plastic figure of the Christ child taken from a village-owned nativity display at Evergreen Avenue and Campbell Street.

Police were notified Sunday that the small figure was missing. A patrolman Sunday said the figurt was in the manger replica Saturday afternoon. This marks the second time the Christ figure has been stolen from the display.

Gene Willroth, village public works director, said the baby was stolen before Christmas in 1974. Other than the two thefts, the display hasn't been bothered or damaged, he said.

All figures in the display have been wired down to keep them from blowing over in the wind. But the wires apparently were not enough to deter thieves from stealing the figure.

No dollar estimate on the value of the figure was available Sunday.

Dist. 23 voters OK tax hike

crease in the bond and interest fund, leaving the over-all tax rate at its present $2.51 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation, Grodsky said.

The 60 cent increase in the education fund is to be levied gradually over six years, Hendron said. The over-all tax rate will remain steady because the tax rate in the bond and interest fund will drop as bonds are retired and as the board raises the education fund.

"The taxpayers showed a trust and belief in us and now we intend to keep our promise and hold the over-all tax rate steady," Lace said.

While passage of the referendum means Dist. 23 officials will not have to make the $200,000 in program and staff cuts they were considering, Grodsky said he has not ruled out the possibility that smaller cuts may still have to be made.

"By the end of March the board will have to decide one way or the other about the cuts," he said. "I'm a lot more optimistic now though that we won't have to cut educational services for the children."

FACED WITH A PROJECTED $278,000 deficit and already having borrowed as much as legally allowed, the district's financial problems won't be remedied over night, Lace said.

"We haven't had a referendum for so long that things just got out of hand," he said. "I think now we'll be able to keep the district on an even keel."

Voters in Dist. 23 have defeated five referendums in the past 12 years.

"The community really responded favorably to the district's needs and now it's up to the administration and the board to make every effort possible to hold the educational program together until we realize the full benfit of Saturday's referendum," Assistant Supt. Gerald McGovern, said.

Disturbing questions at Harper

Just over a year ago, voters in the Northwest suburbs approved funds for Harper College to buy land in Arlington Heights for a possible second campus.

At that time, college officials said they would carefully weigh future enrollment trends at the college before going ahead with construction on the second campus. Residents would be assured that no second campus would be built unless there was a clear need, Harper officials repeatedly said.

Since then the college board has taken preliminary steps to hire an architect for the second campus. And just last week, Board Pres. Shirley Munson raised some important and disturbing questions about whether the college board has received sufficient information on the college's enrollment this year to do further planning.

One of the most disturbing parts of Munson's question about enrollment, however, was the reaction she got from one of her fellow board members.

When Munson raised the question, Board Member William Kelly suggested her question had "political" motivations and said, "It would appear you are opposed to the development of a second campus in Arlington Heights."

That comment runs directly counter to all the assurances voters received last year that no decision would be made on the subject of a second campus until all the facts are in. Kelly's statement implies that board members must now be "for" or "against" a second campus when they ask for additional information.

If that is what Kelly meant by his comment — and if other board members and the Harper administration agree with its implications — the voters have cause for alarm. It is beginning to look like promises made during the referendum campaign are being forgotten.

The other disturbing aspect of Munson's question about enrollment is her contention that college officials apparently have been slow this year in providing enrollment data. In September the board received a report on the college's 10th day enrollment, but Munson was concerned that the board had not received a report on mid-term enrollment, the number which is used by the state to determine how much state aid the college will receive.

Munson says that after three weeks of asking, she was finally given, last week, an enrollment report which included mid-term figures.

For those who have followed Harper's progress through the years that, by itself, is extraordinary. In the past, particularly when enrollment has been skyrocketing, board members were regularly given written and oral reports during board meetings on enrollment.

Harper officials claim they have not slowed down the reporting of enrollment figures to the board, despite Munson's claim.

In the report Munson and the rest of the board received last week, the number of full-time students taking courses for credit has dropped from 6,727 last year to 6,556 this year.

The explanation for the drop is apparent when one looks at the total numbers of full-and part-time students attending Harper — a number that is still increasing. College officials explain more students are taking fewer courses each. The increase in part-time students accounts for the drop in "full-time" enrollment.

However sensible that explanation is, it may be that some Harper officials fear that talk about enrollment figures that show a drop, rather than an increase, may put a damper on plans for a second campus.

We hope that is not the case. We hope in fact that the whole incident involving Munson's charge that the board is receiving inadequate information is the result of a misunderstanding that will be cleared up quickly.

A second campus for Harper, as we have said before, could be a great boon to the community.

It also could be a boondoggle if the Harper board builds a campus that is not needed.

Board members deserve all the facts, not snide insinuations.

Airbag decision wise

U. S. Transportation Sec. William Coleman has wisely decided against a requirement that airbags be installed in all new American cars.

Instead, the secretary proposed a two-year test with the safety devices installed in about 5 per cent of the cars sold.

The project would begin in September 1978 if the auto industry agrees.

The airbags inflate automatically in the event of an accident, preventing passengers from being tossed around inside the car or thrown from it. Cost per car for the devices would be between $50 and $100, depending on the type of bag used.

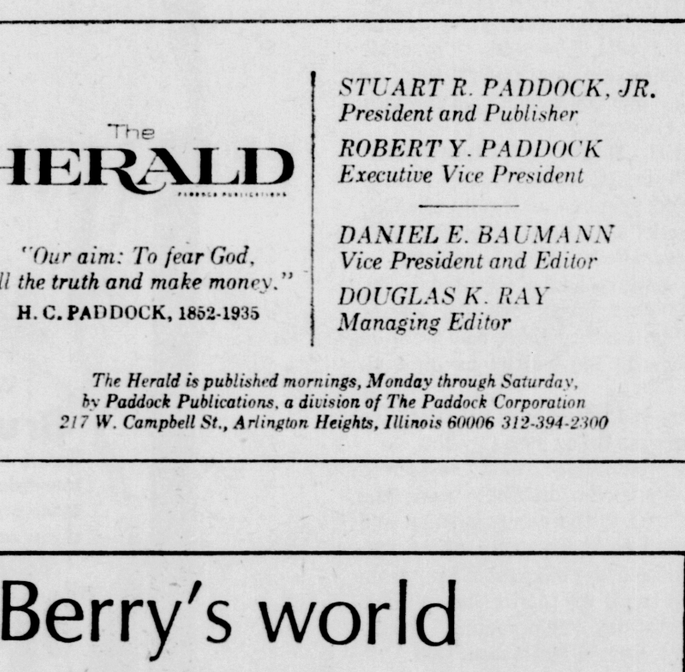

Secretary Coleman said the airbags "are technically feasible, would provide substantially increased protection for the public in traffic accidents and can be produced economically." They will "prevent thousands of deaths and tens of thousands of injuries," he believes.

Nonetheless, required installation on all cars would invite consumer rejection, Coleman feels, and we believe he is right. Seat belts, when initially required, were rejected by many drivers. Their acceptance has come gradually. Seat belt interlock systems were rejected entirely.

Airbags were offered for three years by General Motors, but lack of consumer interest caused that firm to drop them.

Under Coleman's plan, at least two auto manufacturers would agree to offer for sale a half-million cars equipped with airbags. Whether they will accept the proposal, and whether enough consumers will try the cars thus equipped, are matters of conjecture. We do believe, however, that a step-by-step introduction of airbags will bring a greater degree of acceptance than forced use of the bags on all new cars.

Society losing reverence for life

by TOM TIEDE
A commentary

BALTIMORE — The most bizarre aspect of the depressing Gary Gilmore affair is not the killer himself but those multitudes who have all along wished for the killer to be killed. They include the scores who have from the beginning expressed a desire to be on the firing squad, and the array of ordinary men and women who have told pollsters of their ghoulish versions of justice.

There thus has been a lesson in the convict's macabre theater. It has reminded us of what the social chroniclers have said is our failing reverence for life. Once we sanctified existence, even held this as the greatest of our virtues; now, perhaps because we are overcrowded with one another, the society is changing its outlook.

Nowhere is the change more obvious, and pronounced, than in a small portion of the Maryland medical industry known as the Institute for Emergency Medicine. It is a shock-trauma facility which, under the law, approaches the question of life-death with a near surrealistic detachment. Its mission is to save people's lives, but "where necessary" it sometimes serves to take the lives instead.

THE STATE OF Maryland considers a person to be legally dead if the brain has ceased totally to function for a period of 24 hours. Hence in such circumstances doctors at the institute are allowed to withdraw life support systems from their patients. Normally the physicians consult with relatives of the subject, other times this is impossible. In a sense, then, euthanasia here has become common practice.

The doctors who work at emergency medicine say that their responsibilities in these matters sound far more frightening than they are. They explain that the shock-trauma unit receives only the worst of emergency patients, those whom under ordinary circumstances have only hours to live. And so when all the wonders of science fail to revive the victims, the allowance of death is humane.

Such is the rationale of the moment. And not only among physicians wrestling with the morality of euthanasia. Abortionists are others who believe that the prevention of existence is merciful in that it is concerned with the right of women to be in control of themselves. And too, those who favor capital punishment feel philanthropic because they are interested in the safety of the vulnerable community.

EVEN SUICIDE IS no longer considered with negative certainty. Books have been written which suggest that under certain conditions people should not only have the right to take their own lives (it is technically illegal), but may have a responsibility to do so. For instance: a desperately sick person who becomes a financial burden to his family; it's now said suicide may be the most honorable relief.

One trouble with this somber trend is that, in motion, it has often moved beyond the limits of serious discussion and into the grip of ghastly excess. A Florida state legislator, as example, has tried to create a law in that state which would authorize the extermination of people — such as the retarded — who do not live in a productive manner. Shamelessly, the legislator argues that the business would not only be humane, but would save billions in public assistance.

AND THEN THERE is the district attorney of Gwinnett County in Geohgia. His state has executed more people than any other in modern times — more than 400 since the 1920s — but the Gwinnett D.A. lobbies for even larger numbers by wearing a gold-plated hangman's noose on his lapel. At that he is not alone in his sentiment; when a Virginia legislator recently and bemusedly suggested a return of the public gallows he was beseiged with support from those thinking him serious.

Brave new world's a coming? Already it is an age when politicians can demonstrate that feeding hungry nations is objectionable, that allowing some starvation may be the preferable way to stimulate self-help among the poor. Meanwhile, the homosexuals argue they are healthier than others, for they produce no offspring and therefore no grief.

Life no longer seems to be lost merely by dying. It is slipping away from us, perhaps, little by little, in a thousand awful ways.

'Now's time for more buses'

The time is right for the Village of Arlington Heights to fund the development of an expanded commuter bus service similar to the current Arlington Heights/Buffalo Grove system. Such a system would require an initial local subsidy, but could be funded by the RTA once it is operational.

This service would be essentially a north-south system which would permit commuters to get to the two train stations and provide transportation for local business employes. A limited shopper use could also be expected as some library patrons are already utilizing the current Arlington Heights/Buffalo Grove system to get to the library.

If such a system were implemented now, several advantages would result to the residents of Arlington Heights; the system would:

1. Eliminate the need for a second or third auto for many families.

2. Reduce congestion in and around the commuter stations at rush hour.

3. Provide for more orderly development of our central business district so that commuter parking does not choke out development.

4. Reduce the trend toward making the central business district a community parking lot, thereby permitting the property to remain on the tax rolls producing needed tax revenue.

5. Allow local residents to escape some of the impact of future oil price increases and provide an insurance against possible oil embargoes by OPEC.

The Arlington Heights/Buffalo Grove commuter route is a success. We should move now to cooperate with surrounding communities to expand the service to make it available to all residents.

Dist. 26 praised for board choice

River Trails School Dist. 26 filled two vacancies on its board of education last week. Joy Daskal and Pat Fauceglia were selected by the board to serve until the April elections, at which time the voters will get their chance to approve or disapprove of these two as well as three others whose terms will expire.

As far as the most recent selections, I would like to commend the board on one of its choices. I believe the board showed remarkable good judgement in its choice of Joy Daskal.

I am convinced that Mrs. Daskal possesses the talents and abilities to become an excellent board member. Something that is far more important to me personally is my feeling that Mrs. Daskal will show an avowed interest in advancing the quality of education in the district.

Whatever happens of course, the residents of the district will have their opportunity to judge the performance of Mrs. Daskal and four other board members in April. I urge all residents of Dist. 26 to attend board meetings on a regular basis in order to vote more objectively. It only requires two Tuesday nights a month. Surely one parent of each housthold can afford that to insure their children the quality education they deserve.

Post office idea good

Too good to be true, the article in the Dec. 7 Palatine Herald about the possibility we may get a postal station.

Before they built that lovely post office on the "outskirts" I used to make a day of shopping in Palatine, the bank and our old convenient post office, at least once a week. I voice the opinion of many senior citizens who also wish for a postal convenience, many like myself, who don't drive, can't afford a car nor stamp machine dispensers.

Thank you, Mgr. Harwig, for such a beautiful idea and let this be another service for the consideration of us seniors.

Groups' campaign meeting Wednesday

Pregnancy rule to be changed?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women's groups and lawmakers, reacting quickly, are preparing a congressional campaign to overturn last week's Supreme Court decision allowing the exclusion of pregnancy from employer disability plans.

Leaders of the women's rights movement and some labor representatives will gather Wednesday in Washington to decide how best to legislate away the impact of the justices' 6-3 vote.

Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., chairman of the House education and labor subcommittee on equal opportunities, already is working on a revision of the 1964 Civil Rights Act to counteract the court's decision.

THE MAJORITY opinion by Justice William Rehnquist said the pregnancy exclusion in the General Electric Co.'s insurance plan is not based on sex and does not violate Title VII of the civil rights law. The plan is no more than a package covering some risks but not others, he said.

Congress can overcome the court decision by an amendment, since the ruling was based on an interpretation of law rather than on the Constitution.

Hawkins said the court appears to be retreating from its prior position of of any policies having discriminatory results, and adopting "the more narrow criterion of discriminatory intent."

"If so," he said, "the gains of the last decade in employment of blacks and other minorities as well as women could be wiped out."

TEN PRESENT and incoming congresswomen have signed a statement pledging to explore new legislation.

The National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year, at the conclusion of a two-day meeting last week, urged early congressional action.

Related story in Suburban Living

Acting presiding officer Ersa Poston expressed concern about the ruling's impact on women who suffer complications during pregnancy and after delivery. But she said employers also will be able to deny payment for illnesses having nothing to do with pregnancy if they occur during maternity leave.

Commissioner Harry Edwards, a Harvard Law School professor, called "outrageous" the suggestion in Rehnquist's opinion that less precise constitutional standards for determining discrimination by race or sex now will suffice for the Civil Rights Act.

The Wednesday meeting here is being coordinated by the National Organization for Women and the American Assn. of University Women.

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

A young lad, just 17, is the high school basketball hero. A hundred colleges are begging for him.

But, the lad is 6-feet-5 and works out four hours a day. He's to enter the arena with kids who are 6-feet-9 and work out six hours a day. In short, good as he may be, he and thousands like him are bucking long odds. Yet already he's boxed into a position where he has to give it a try.

Meanwhile he is understandably bedazzled and confused by it all. It's quite difficult for him to think in terms of not making it. He is asked, "What will you do if a pro career doesn't pan out?" He can't answer.

And if he does make the big time, what of a career after he's too old for the sport — at the tender age of 30 to 35 — and has spent his early productive years out of the job mainstream? He'll be rich by then? There are no statistics, but I'd wager for every ex-pro who invested wisely there are countless others who haven't a nickel to show for it all.

And I can't help but wonder how many coaches and guidance counselors and parents are "influenced" by college recruiters, thus creating still more conflict in the tender mind.

Maybe the best thing that could happen to this legion of aspiring athletes would be to learn as early as possible that they're walking across a mine field, and that they should seek security while they still have a chance.

I'm just trying to point out that there are other things that can destroy a human's fullest potential. And all of the various factors must be weighed more seriously.

Guatemala killings may number 20,000

More than 20,000 persons have been illegally detained and executed in Guatemala during the past decade, Amnesty International said Sunday in London. "Many are found with signs of torture or mutilation along roadsides or in ravines, floating in plastic bags in lakes and rivers, or buried in mass graves in the countryside," the group said in a 17-page report. "Other victims are shot in their homes or in the street." The worldwide human-rights organization said. "Abductions of this nature, in which neither robbery nor ransom is a motive, are known in Guatemala as 'disappearances.' The vast majority of the 'disappeared,' when located, are found to have been the victims of violent death." The report said the total number of deaths was "impossible to verify through individual case dossiers," but the estimate of more than 20,000 victims "is based on reports from the domestic and international press, government and opposition statements and Amnesty International's own statistical findings."

Israelis disperse Arabs

Israel: troops used tear gas Sunday to disperse young Arab demonstrators in Nablus, the largest town in the west Bank of Jordan, and later imposed a curfew on the town. It was the third time in five days that military authorities clamped a curfew on the town after young Arab demonstrators pelted Israeli border police with rocks, burned tires in the streets and set up roadblocks of stones. The troops responded with tear gas as the young people chanted anti-Israel slogans and waved the tricolored flag of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Viking landers set to work

Viking's sleeping landers and quiet orbiters will be awakened this week to begin sending back more data from Mars following a month-long period of inactivity due to the sun's intervention between the planets. The two orbiters looping above Mars are to be tuned up by computer Monday and Tuesday and data will be sent back to Earth beginning Wednesday. Scientists spent four months analyzing data from Mars in a search for some form of bacterial life. There were surprising results but no confirmation life existed on the dry, red planet. The landers on the planet's surface will resume their transmissions Thursday and Friday. Among the first data to be analyzed will be an indication from the one seismological instrument that works, on lander 2, that a Marsquake occurred sometime in November.

Infants screened for TB

County health officials have launched an extensive program to screen as many as 600 infants who may have been exposed to tuberculosis by a woman doctor in the nursery of Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. All infants who were born or treated at the hospital between last July 1 and Nov. 11 will be given tuberculin skin tests to determine whether they have been infected. Dr. Leo Tepper, tuberculosis control officer for Los Angeles County, said the program was launched when it was discovered that the woman physician, who was not identified, was found to have active tuberculosis on Nov. 11.

Gilmore awaits decision

Condemned killer Gary Gilmore, hoping to learn Monday if the U.S. Supreme Court will allow his death wish to be granted, met with attorneys during the weekend to plan his defense for a possible second murder trial, authorities said Sunday. Gilmore, scheduled to be killed by a firing squad a week ago, was thwarted in his desire for immediate death when the Supreme Court granted a temporary stay of the execution on an appeal from his mother. Both Gilmore and the Utah Attorney General have asked the justices to dismiss the appeal by the ailing, bedridden mother, Bessie Gilmore, of Milwaukee, Ore., saying she has no standing in the case. The Supreme Court considered the case last Wednesday and Friday, but declined to rule both times. A decision to lift or extend the stay of execution it granted is possible Monday. If no decision comes Monday, the court will be in recess through the Christmas holidays.

Vessels collide off Frisco

A Swedish car-carrying ship collided in the fog Sunday with an Army Corps of Engineers dredging vessel, the Coast Guard Rescue Center in San Francisco dispatched three cutters with pumps to prevent flooding. The Coast Guard said the collision between the 660-foot Swedish ship, the Don Carlos, and the 312-foot Corps of Engineers vessel, the Chester Harding, occurred shortly after midnight. The Chester Harding carried a crew of 80. It was not immediately known how large a crew the Swedish ship carried. No injuries were reported. A Coast Guard spokesman said the accident took place near the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge north of San Francisco.

Feminists act to counter Supreme Court blow

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Feminist lawyers from across the nation will meet in Philadelphia Tuesday to decide strategy to counteract a setback handed the women's movement last week by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court ruled, 6 to 3, that companies do not discriminate against women when they deny sick pay to women out for childbirth and the subsequent recuperation.

Excluding pregnancy from sickness and accident insurance plans does not violate the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which bars jobs discrimination on the basis of race or sex, Justice William Rehnquist ruled for the 6-3 majority.

Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, told United Press International the feminist lawyers will figure out the wording for proposed measures to be introduced in Congress to overcome "the Court's blow to the women's movement."

THE SUPREME Court's ruling, in a case involving General Electric Co., a major manufacturer of household appliances, was the first to go against women's liberation movement aims.

Previously, courts decided equal pay for equal work cases in tune with movement goals. The first big court decision in step with the movement was the ruling on abortion in the early 1970s.

Words like terrible, horror, shock, disbelief were used frequently by movement leaders asked to comment on the decision.

Ms. DeCrow, a lawyer from Syracuse, N.Y., and author of the book, "Sexist Justice," was reached by telephone after the ruling.

"What does it mean to the movement?" she was asked.

"It means that we already have sponsors in the House and Senate to introduce federal legislation," Ms DeCrow said.

"CONG. AUGUST F. Hawkins of California and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana are our sponsors.

"The legislation might be a narrow amendment to the insurance law or something broader.

"We might just want to add some words to Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. We really don't know the best way. Feminist lawyers will meet Tuesday in Philadelphia to decide what kind of language the bill should use.

"There will be people from the National Organization for Women and the American Civil Liberties Union."

Ms. DeCrow said the effect of the Supreme Court decision denying sick pay to women out for childbirth and during the recovery period will mean economic hardships for a great many women and their families.

"IT WAS A SLAP in the face to motherhood.

"If people are paid sick leave when they're out for nose jobs, hair transplants and vasectomies, why not for childbirth?"

Susan Ross, the American Civil Liberties Union lawyer who deals with discrimination cases against pregnant workers, believes the decision has some serious implications for all pregnant workers, not just those out for childbirth.

"Employers might decide they can fire these women or deny them a leave of absence or put them on a mandatory unpaid leave of absence.

"The workers could lose their seniority. All this is now up in the air — all these policies concerning pregnant workers."

The court's ruling rejects rulings by six United States Courts of Appeals on the pregnancy issue.

The judges decided in the lower federal courts that exclusion of benefits for pregnancy violated Title VII.

STATE REP. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, who has been an active legislator for women's rights in the Illinois General Assembly, said the decision pointed up the need for women on the Supreme Court.

"I am pleased that there were three justices who understand what sex discrimination is," she said, "and I am surprised that the other justices showed such a lack of understanding."

"We certainly will need to move for corrective legislation," said Mrs. Chapman.

Sexist advertising

Women must unite to change image

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

If last week's Chicago conference on the portrayal of women in advertising proved anything, it was that the name of the game is diversity — in the way women want to be represented by advertisers, in their complaints about offensive material and in the possible solutions to the problem of sexist advertising.

The collection of 75-100 advertising executives, media representatives, educational specialists and women's groups, sponsored by the state Commission on the Status of Women and the Commission on Human Relations, seemed to agree that the demeaning image of a giggling housewife talking to her toilet bowl had to go. But from that point on, it was up for grabs.

A survey mailed to 1,000 members of activist women's groups throughout the state, both for and against the women's movement, had netted 300 replies at the time of the conference. From the 196 letters included, more than 150 advertisements were singled out as either demeaning or favorable to women.

IN THE "MOST ACCEPTABLE" category, repeated examples included Sears Kenmore appliances because they show women in a home environment; the "not acceptable" group included a Virginia Slims cigaret ad because it ostensibly poked fun at the goals of the feminist movement (the same ad also turned up in the acceptable category because it featured women in a non-housewife role).

Everything from laundry detergent to insurance companies came under scrutiny from both the survey respondents and the conference participants, and suggestions ranged from featuring more single and divorced people to upgrading the image of housewives.

But whether the conferees heraided or hated a particular sales pitch, the emphasis seemed to be on avoiding a degrading portrayal, regardless of the woman's — or man's — role.

There is no doubt that many advertisements have been demeaning to women, said luncheon speaker Barbara Proctor of Chicago's Proctor and Gardner ad agency. But the roadblocks to eliminating those ads are formidable: a lack of concerted organization on the part of women consumers, and the reality that "advertisers are not worrying about 'social responsibility' — they are out to sell a product first and foremost."

"Advertisers have to recognize that women should be categorized as either a corporate tycoon or 'just a housewife.' Women are people, and people are multifaceted," Ms. Proctor said. "But our problem is that we react rather than act and define ourselves . . . we may complain about negative images, but women by the millions are supporting those images."

> "Our problem is that we react rather than act and define ourselves . . . we may complain about negative images, but women by the millions are supporting those images." —Barbara Proctor

PART OF THE PROBLEM, she added, is that the advertisements do not exist in a vacuum. They are surrounded by content that reflects their negative image. "We say that 'Charlie's Angels' are trite, contrived and chauvinistic, but we've also got to say that the show is No. 1 on this week's Neilson ratings."

"It's a lot more palatable to fantasize about 'Charlie's Angels' than it is to recognize that crime is rising 300 per cent faster among women than men in this country," she explained. "Fantasy and ridicule are the top line therapy these days."

"In the final analysis, the media is the message. No commercial has stayed on the air when there's been a concerted effort to get it off," she continued. "Women consumers from ages 18 to 49 are the most formidable lobby in the United States, and we do have the power to short-circuit an advertising portrayal. In this case, 'what she gets is what she wants.' "

Organizing complaints and channeling them to the proper sources are easier when women themselves are organized, Ms. Proctor said. Directing letters to the corporation president is one of the most effective methods, but "when we yell for equal rights on the job and then tell our husbands not to hire attractive women, I don't think we're ready to act."

WHETHER OR NOT women are ready to collectively tackle offensive advertising, at least an awareness is being created, said Connie Seals, executive director of the Commission on Human Relations. The next step will be public hearings next spring before the Commission on the Status of Women, with possible recommendations coming from those sessions.

"The first requirement is establishing a dialog, and this conference has done that," Ms. Seals said. "You can't play the game without identifying the players, and at least we've made a start."

> "No commercial has stayed on the air when there's been a concerted effort to get it off. —Barbara Proctor.

FROM SEXPOT TO saleswoman, the image of women in advertising is becoming an increasing concern. A conference held in Chicago last week brought together representatives of advertising and women's groups to discuss positive and negative portrayals as well as options for change in the industry.

Skirt and waistband must be fitted separately

Dear Eunice Farmer,

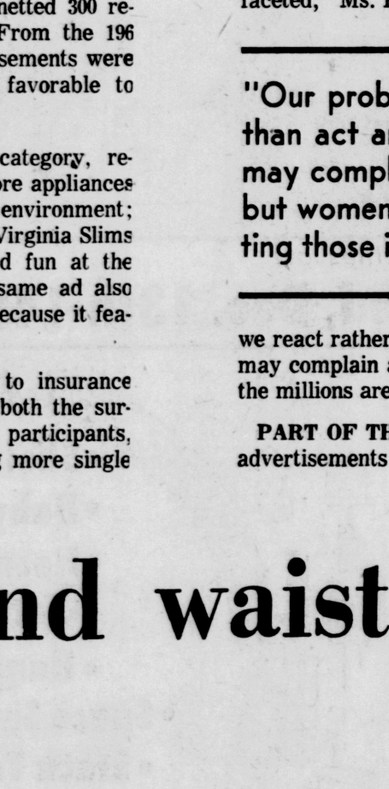

When I machine-stitch my waistband to the skirt, it is often larger than the skirt and I don't get a proper fit. How should a skirt be fitted? Before or after applying the waistband? — Dorothy C.

Dear Dorothy,

The skirt must be fitted separately, just as the waistband must be fitted before the two can be attached. I have always suggested stitching a row of machine stitching with the longest stitch on the seamline. Ease up the stitching slightly, especially on each side of the side seams, front and back. If you have a large tummy, ease slightly over the stomach area and eliminate front darts.

Try the skirt on to see if it fits nicely over the curves of your body. Be sure it isn't too tight. If it is, it will form a fold of fabric just below the waistband and look very unattractive.

Next, fit the waistband to yourself, marking the spot where it will overlap. (The extension of your waistband should be on the underside; the top side of the waistband should end at the zipper.) Now, carefully pin the waistband over the eased skirt — remember, the skirt must always be slightly larger than the waistband.

Try your skirt on. If it fits perfectly, you are ready to machine-stitch the waistband. Be sure to pin it frequently to prevent slipping, but remember to remove the pins before stitching over them.

These same instructions will apply to pants as well as skirts.

This week's winner of a set of gold blazer buttons is Mrs. Janet Maucher, 7421 Shisler St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19111.

Here's her winning tip:

"When making a wrap skirt that requires a buttonhole at each side of the ties to go through, sew your buttonhole on an angle instead of vertically. The tie will go through the buttonhole with ease, last longer and not pull out of shape. You can also make a larger buttonhole to accommodate the width of the tie, if fabric is heavy, by slanting it."

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Is it true that an acrylic knit will stretch out more than any other fiber or is this just an idle rumor? — Mrs. M. N.

Dear Mrs. M. N.,

We can't generalize on any knits; you must test each one before you make a purchase. Try to pull the fabric with the cross grain where you will ordinarily find the most stretch. Unless it snaps right back into shape again, you are in deep trouble.

Your knits don't have to be quite as tightly woven for soft, loose dresses, as they do for pants. But, I can't stress too strongly the need for pretesting every knit you purchase. Also, you can often go by the quality of the knit for your guideline. The better the quality, the more likely it is that it will hold its shape.

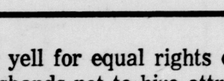

You also asked about underlining the knit to keep its shape. I never recommend underlining a knit because you take away the stretch factor completely. You may separately line a knit if you desire. This only makes it easier to slip on and off; it doesn't actually affect the stretch or give of the fabric.

Sew simple

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Does the bias-cut skirt or dress stretch or "grow" in woven fabrics? You have mentioned that it does with knits. — Mrs. Marguerite N.

Dear Marguerite,

Yes, the bias of any part of a garment in woven fabric will certainly stretch somewhat. It is always advisable to allow any bias area to relax and stretch out to its fullest before completing the garment.

As to knit garments, some of them will continually grow and get longer and longer. If you find this happening, it's best to fold this type of garment and allow it to remain flat in a drawer instead of on a hanger. With today's many new fabrics, there are no set rules to go by. Each garment and each fabric can present a new set of problems and must be treated individually.

The doctor says

Helps for alcoholics listed in directory

What does alcohol do to a person's brain and personality, nervous system and stomach? I have a friend who drinks lots of beer, even before breakfast. It makes him mean and nervous, also dangerous. He takes money his family needs for food and medicine to buy beer. What can be done? He says there is no such thing as an alcoholic, but I think he is one.

On the basis of what you state I think you are right — he is an alcoholic. the responsible members of his family should try to get help. I would suggest checking the Yellow Pages of your phone directory under Alcoholism and see if there is an Al-Anon organization in the community. If so, the family member can call them and ask for guidance in handling the problem.

If there is no Al-Anon organization and there is an Alcoholics Anonymous organization, perhaps some help can be obtained there. The family might ask the family doctor for his suggestions or help. You may find other organizations in the same listing in your phone book that help with problems of alcohol.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, to give you more information on the adverse effects of alcohol. Suffice it to say here that alcohol damages the brain or nerves, the digestive system, the liver and is a major cause of death in addition to the human misery it causes as a social problem. Others who want information on the effects of alcohol can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for that issue of The Health Letter. Just send your letter to me in care of P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I am a man of 77 years of age. I do a little jogging, about three miles in one hour. I also have high blood pressure and take one and a half water pills a day for it.

I have enjoyed a drink of brandy and wine mixed; also now and then I take a bottle of beer. The last seven days I have not taken any alcoholic drink at all.

About three weeks ago I was having nose bleeds, but since leaving the drinks off, I have not had a nose bleed. Would the alcohol be responsibile for my nose bleeds?

Alcohol does dilate the small blood vessels. You see this effect when the face flushes after a drink or two. If you have dilated small vessels, it is easier for them to bleed from any cause.

You may have had some irritation of the lining of the nose that contributed to the problem. As you get older or are in a dry climate or very dry room, the lining of the nose may become excessively dry. The irritation may lead to "picking" and injure the nose resulting in bleeding.

Individuals with high blood pressure are someetimes subject to nose bleeds. Decreasing the blood pressure may help relieve the condition.

You are better off not drinking anyway so you might as well avoid it. If you have any excess weight, loss of body fat may help control your blood pressure. Finally if your nose is dry, put a little petroleum jelly or other lubricant in the tip of your nose in the morning and evening to stop the excess drying and irritation.

Simple yule decoration should last for years

This is the time new householders ask questions about easy ways to do decorations, and so I'm prompted to remind all of you of a simple hall table decoration. Nail a piece of chicken wire to a board the length you want the centerpiece to be. I had the same one for years — 5 by 8 inches, covered with aluminum foil. Slip fresh evergreen branches through the wire. Then nestle varicolored balls, small Santas, reindeers, angels and so forth among the branches. Not only is it inexpensive but highly effective.

Dear Dorothy: Several weeks back we went camping and got caught in a rainstorm. Moisture seeped into my train case, and it's full of black mold. As it's part of a set I'd hate to lose the piece and am hoping you have some suggestion. — Katy Rich

Try wiping it with a cloth wrung out of dilute alcohol (one cup rubbing alcohol to one cup water.) Then dry with a current of air. If mildew remains, wash with a thick suds of mild soap or detergent, or a soap containing a germicide or fungicide. Then wipe with a damp cloth and dry in an airy place. This isn't guaranteed because mildew in luggage is difficult, but it's well worth the try.

Dear Dorothy: The best way to remove excess grease from a pot of soup or chili is to lay a paper towel lightly across the top. As soon as it's soaked, remove. Two or three towels usually are sufficient. — Mrs. Ruth C. Stewart

Dear Dorothy: I know you're supposed to use both parts of a double boiler to keep lime from forming in the bottom pan. I find it just as easy to put a teaspoon of cream of tartar in the water in the bottom pan — and never a trace of lime. — Hilda Tuckerman.

Ford to leave with chin up, ready for challenges

by RICHARD H. GROWALD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says he is not sulking over his election defeat and will leave the White House "with my chin up" for the exciting challenge of campus, charity, business, politics and literature.

In his first published interview since losing to Jimmy Carter, Ford told UPI:

"I am too young to vegetate."

Puffing a pipe and seated in a leather wing chair next to a crackling fire in the Oval Office Ford singled out no reasons for his defeat.

"We lost. We did the best we could.

"We have a clear conscience and I am going to leave the White House with my chin up and I am going to be looking forward to an exciting and challenging time ahead."

FORD APPEARED puzzled about reports he dislikes Carter, and that — distraught over losing the presidency — he has turned into a White House recluse.

He preferred to talk of his achievements and disappointments in the White House, of the Russians, the Chinese, Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger, the Republican party, his family and his future.

"I have made a basic decision that I am not going to take a job that will keep me busy on that particular job 10, 12 hours a day. I anticipate a variety of activity that will encompass some participation on college and university campuses, some philanthropic work, some connections in the business world.

"I will have some political activity, not at the nuts and bolts level, but I intend to have an influence in the Republican party," he said. "Of course, I expect to write a book, one or more."

"I will make no firm commitments in any of these fields until after the 20th of January."

FORD LAUGHED about published reports he has been depressed since his Nov. 2 defeat.

"Where did those crazy impressions come from? They are really totally without fact or foundation.

"The truth is, I have had enough experience in life where you win some and you lose some. I have never been one who sat around and sulked after I lost one. I always looked forward to the next challenge."

Asked about reports he dislikes Carter, Ford shook his head.

"I think we have developed a friendship. I tried (in a post-election meeting) to be cordial and friendly to him, and he reciprocated. I couldn't say that we are bosom friends. We just didn't have that much exposure to one another, but there is absolutely no antagonism," he said.

"THAT IS not my nature," Ford said. "So I felt it was not only a personal responsibility but a responsibility as President to be as friendly, and I was, and I think he did the same."

Asked about Carter's remarks that he might ask Ford to help him the way Harry S. Truman used Herbert Hoover, Ford nodded.

"I think depending upon what he wants me to do, I will be very glad to cooperate with him," the President said.

Does he see himself as an elder statesman?

"Oh, no," Ford replied, smiling. "I am going to be an active participant. So I will have my views known and my presence felt. I am too young to vegetate."

Asked why he lost to Carter, Ford waved his pipe and said, "I have read a lot. People have gone back and analyzed the election and I subjectively have done so, but I just don't think it is helpful to replay and say if we had done this or done that we might have won.

FORD SAID he looks to the future, not the past. "That is exactly the way I feel, mentally, physically.

"And just because we didn't go out socially or didn't have a press conference or didn't do one or another thing is no indication of a glumness about the result of the election.

"As a matter of fact, we had to catch up on some sleep and we went out (after the election) and enjoyed ourselves in Palm Springs. We really just had a period of relaxation," he said.

During the interview, he seemed rested, in full voice, animated, trim and joking.

Asked why he telephoned former President Nixon two days after the election, Ford said, "It was a combination of things.

"One, we have traditionally been concerned about Mrs. Nixon's health. And I hadn't talked to him for, what, three months, more or less, as I recall. Secondly, I was interested in his analysis of the election.

DID FORD feel he was handicapped by the way he took office — first becoming vice president when Spiro Agnew resigned, then ascending to the presidency when Nixon was turned out by Watergate?

"I never felt that being an unelected President had been harmful in the job that I had to do . . . I never considered that a handicap," he said.

Ford was asked if his granting Nixon a pardon was the kind of presidential decision-making Truman meant in saying that at the Oval Office, "the buck stops here."

"I can't recall how many real, tough decisions where I was the only one that could make that decision — the pardon obviously was one. I recognized that in those tough decisions there are gray areas where you had to evaluate the pros and cons and the arguments would cross over, the arguments might be well planned, but that is part of the job."

PRESIDENT FORD, says he will leave the White House "with my chin up" for challenge of future.

His voice rose when he discussed the future of the Republican party and his part in it. He said the nation needs a strong two-party system.

"THEREFORE, IT is important that the Republican party be alive, that it contribute at the local, state and national levels," Ford said. "I hope to be instrumental in giving some guidance and support to the party."

Ronald Reagan, whom he defeated for the GOP nomination, has called for the GOP to be a base for conservatives. Ford disagreed.

"I do think I can contribute in making certain that the Republican party is broadbased, that it has an open door to people in all segments of our society.

"I think the fact that I got 48, 49 per cent of the vote indicates that nearly half of the American people will support someone who has a philosophy like the one I have and that is a policy of bringing in people on a geographical, philosophical basis."

"I feel that during my presidency the greatest achievement was the healing of the divisiveness, the healing of the differences between the American people.

He ticked off what he felt were other accomplishments:

• "I think that Vladivostok (where in 1974 he reached agreement with Soviet Communist party General Sec. Leonid Brezhnev to limit offensive strategic nuclear weapons) was really an historic achievement.

• "The initiative we took in southern Africa (mediating between blacks and South Africa and Rhodesia) which I firmly believe will result in the success there was another breakthrough," Ford said.

• "The continued movement in the Middle East certainly, in my opinion, will result in a final settlement of those tough problems. If we hadn't been able to move I think the Middle East would have blown up."

• Winning the battle against inflation. We are not home free, but by any standards I think we have made tremendous progress."

He waved his pipe. "The one area where we haven't done as well as I had hoped and probably my greatest disappointment is we haven't made the kind of progress in unemployment that I had hoped and I think must be achieved by my successor."

"I think the problem can be solved. I just hope that the new administration doesn't overly concentrate on that problem because if they do, they will undoubtedly lose some of the gains we have made in fighting the battle of inflation."

How does he figure history will judge his administration?

Ford leaned forward and said, "We have gotten 25,000 or more letters including roughly 2,000 from people who said they voted for Mr. Carter and the consensus, seems to be that historians will look upon this 2½ years a record of achievement during a very tough time in the United States."

Ford covered these other topics:

• Kissinger: "I think Henry Kissinger will go down as one of the finest secretaries of state this country has ever had."

• Carter's selection of Cyrus Vance as Kissinger's successor: "I think it is a good appointment. I have known Cyrus Vance since we were in law school together."

• On his thoughts just before succeeding Nixon: "I felt that I was prepared to take over because my experience as vice president. I was confident that I was well informed, I was experienced in the handling of most domestic and international affairs . . . I was fully assured within myself that I could handle the problems.

• His reform of the CIA and other intelligence agencies: " . . . Today the intelligence community in the federal government is, I think, on the road to doing the job that they have a responsibility to do and at the same time I am convinced they are living up to their responsibilities as far as the American people are concerned. And as long as we have good people at the head of the intelligence community, the abuses that existed in the past will not reoccur."

• His wife and children in the White House: "As a family, we are closer today than we ever have been . . . we (he and Betty) consider that a real blessing because the tendency is when children get that old, they sort of drift off. The campaign really made the family a closer unit than they had ever been before."

Great things are happening this weekend!

Ask Andy

Many beasts must leave their homes

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Mary Bowman, 11, of Williamsport, Pa., for her question: DO OTHER ANIMALS BESIDES BIRDS MIGRATE?

Our planet is a bountiful place, providing the things necessary for its inhabitants to sustain life. In the spring, summer and fall, living is more or less easy. Food is abundant, and the temperature is moderate. Winter, however, sometimes imposes a hardship on nature's creatures, and they must leave their homes in search of a more suitable habitat.

Birds probably are the most famous of the migrating animals. Some of them wing their way for thousands of miles from colder to warmer climates. There are a number of reasons why they do this — to find food, to breed and nest are among the top choices.

Migrating, however, is not something that the birds invented, or can claim a patent on. Mammals, fish and even insects periodically migrate for one reason or another, and it seems that only the snakey reptiles are the true stay-at-homes.

Land mammals probably migrate the shortest distances. Deer and elk, for example, generally live in mountainous regions. Their migration might simply consist of traveling down the slopes as winter closes in. With the coming of the dry season in Africa, however, many mammals migrate great distances in search of water.

Although most insects spend their lives sticking pretty close to their place of birth, some of them are champion migrators. Perhaps the best known are the monarch butterfly and its cousin the painted lady butterfly. In the fall huge flocks of monarchs travel several thousand miles as they fly south from Canada and the Northern United States. Many of them fly as far south as Mexico and Central America. The painted lady is noted for its migration across the Mediterranean Sea as it flies between Europe and Africa.

Many fish and marine mammals also migrate great distances. Salmon from the salty sea migrate back to the streams where they were hatched to mate and deposit their eggs. Some eels do the same thing but in reverse. They leave their freshwater streams and journey far out into the ocean to mate and spawn. Marine mammals such as whales and seals may migrate as far as 2,000 miles in search of warmer waters and favorite breeding grounds.

Bath coup takes contract

Jim: "South lets West hold the first trick with the king of spades. This simple duck play insures his contract since West is now helpless. If West continues spades, South will have two spade tricks. If West shifts to another suit as he probably will, South has only one spade trick but he will have time to ksock out the ace of diamonds and to collect four diamond tricks in addition to the ace of spades and the aces and kings of hearts and clubs."

Oswald: "This simple duck play has a name. It is called the Bath coup because back in the days of whist someone playing in the seaside resort of Bath in England first thought of it."

Jim: "I imagine it was a very effective play in whist when there was no bidding and no dummy. It still can be a most effective play in contract."

Oswald: "Yes, indeed. In two ways. The first way is that declarer gains a trick when the suit is continued. The second is that there are times when declarer simply ducks with the ace but without the jack. There is always a chance that he will think you have the jack and shift to another suit.

An Oregon reader wants to know the correct opening bid as declarer when you hold:

Spade-Ace, king, queen, Jack, two low cards; Heart — Ace, two low cards; Diamond - Three low cards; Club — One low card.

The correct opening bid in all standard type systems is one spade. There is no reason to open anything else and a pass is ridiculous.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

Dreams on a Mattress

'Twas the night before Christmas
And all through the house
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a mouse .....
Because they had just bought comfortable Schaumburg mattresses for everyone (including the mouse) and everyone was asleep (even the mouse).

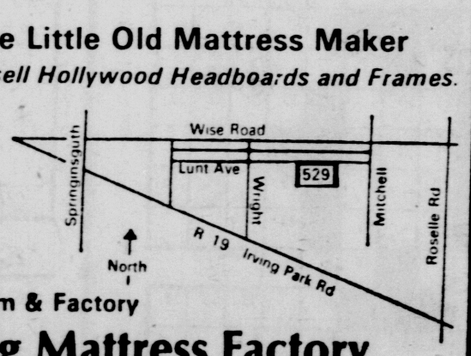

They were all dreaming about how relaxed and comfortable they were and how good they were going to feel on Christmas Day after such a wonderful night's sleep.

And they all woke up and shouted:

MERRY CHRISTMAS
EVERYONE!!!

Consumers pay $1.5 million extra

Utilities reap tax bonus: report

The nation's major utility companies this year collected a bonus $1.5 billion from customers thanks to tax loopholes that do not require the utilities to pass along industry tax breaks to customers, according to a report by two Washington citizens' organizations.

A report completed by the Environmental Action Foundation and the National Consumer Information Center in Washington, D.C. says the $1.5 billion in profit for fiscal 1975 marks a $500 million increase over fiscal 1974.

The report was released Sunday through the Illinois Public Action Council.

The greatest single winner in the profit was Commonwealth Edison Co. which collected some $110 million, the report said.

THE PROFIT RESULTS from the accounting procedures which the utilities are allowed to use to report to the Internal Revenue Service and the states' individual commerce commissions. The companies' rates are based on figures that do not take into account huge tax breaks and write - offs permitted by the IRS, according to the report.

The companies benefit by large write-offs for such factors as accelerated depreciation and investment tax credits but calculate utility rates without allowing for the tax breaks.

The practice is legal but has cost Americans billions of dollars in the last two years alone, the report said.

"It amounts to customers giving the industry an interest-free loan," Larry Engelstein of the Illinois Public Action Council said.

THE UTILITIES last year labeled the report "false and misleading" when the figures were released for the first time by the foundation.

While a 1964 federal law permits the utilities to use two separate accounting procedurss allowing the multi-billion dollar profits, regulatory commission in 35 states attempt to restrict the practice. Illinois is not among them.

Bob Heineman, spokesman for the Illinois Public Action Council, said the council will ask the Illinois Commerce Commission to exert pressure on the state's utility companies to change their practices.

Danger only if rabies strikes

Vampire bat's bite causes fright

by EDWARD R. RICCUTI
Last in a Series

Superstition of one type or another has adversely affected the attitudes of people toward many animals, particularly creatures of the night, among these, the bat.

Although the bat symbolizes good luck in the Orient, it had the opposite connotation in Europe. Westerners regard the bat as darkly as the night through which it flies. Artists of medieval times and the Renaissance endowed Satan with bat wings. But to many, if not most people, the bat signified one thing — that frightening horror of the supernatural, the vampire.

Before the Spanish conquistadors trekked into the jungles of the American tropics, however, the association between the bat and the vampires of European legend did not exist. The vampire bat, which feeds on the blood of mammals and birds, lives only in the New World, from northern Mexico to the middle of South America. Nowhere else in the world do bats that feed on the blood of other creatures exist.

CONTRARY TO popular belief, not even the vampire bat sucks blood, nor does it take enough of the fluid to harm its human victims. There are reports about sleeping horses covered with vampires, and about repeated attacks by these creatures weakening fowl and puppies to the point of death. But the slightest movement by a human will send the bat flitting to safety. Vampire bats are small, with bodies no longer than a man's hand.

The manner in which the vampire feeds is fascinating. Its razor-sharp teeth scoop out a tiny slice of its host's skin, deep enough to allow blood to trickle forth. An anticoagulant in the bat's saliva keeps the blood flowing steadily, although not heavily. As the blood flows, the bat laps it up with incredible speed, inverting its tongue to form a trough through which the fluid spurts into the mouth, perhaps creating a slight vacuum in the process.

The bite of the vampire apparently has some sort of anesthetic quality for it seldom awakens a sleeping animal or man. William Beebe, the famed explorer and naturalist of the New York Zoological Society, once experimented on a colleague to assess the sensitivity of sleepers to the bat's bite. His subject had been bitten twice by bats the night before without awakening. Beebe tried several times to draw blood from the man's finger by pricking it with a pin while the subject slept, but each time woke the fellow, who must have been a good natured sort.

BEEBE ALSO allowed a vampire to alight on his arm, and observed the bat crawl up his limb. He reported hardly feeling it as it moved, wings neatly folded, on his flesh.

Another illustration of the ability of the vampire to bite without awakening sleeping victims occurred around 1920 when several members of a University of Michigan expedition to Colombia were bitten by bats during the night. In the morning, the victims awoke to find themselves dabbed with smears of blood, but not one of them had been disturbed as the bats had fed in the dark of night.

Furnishing a meal for a vampire bat cannot be described as a pleasant experience, but in itself it does not endanger human well-being. The wound made by the bite of the bat is minuscule and the amount of blood it takes slight. On occasion, however, the bite of the vampire, and, as we shall see, of other bats as well, can visit man with a horror far more terrible than the imagined menace of its blood meal: rabies, which bats, like other mammals, can carry and transmit to man. Several million cattle die yearly in Latin America because rabid vampire bats have fed on them. The cost of the loss totals $350 million annually.

RABIES IS CAUSED by a virus in the saliva of the infected animal. Once the virus is transmitted, the disease will break out after an incubation period that averages about two months, unless the victim has received vaccine. The virus attacks the nervous system and virtually always causes death within two weeks after the onset of the first symptoms.

Bats have replaced dogs as the main source of rabies infection in humans, and since 1951 nine people have died after being bitten by bats infected with the disease. The most recent death was in 1973. The victim was a 26-year-old Kentucky man bitten on the ear by a bat that entered his home while he slept. The man did not seek treatment for the bite, which seemed minor, and a month later he suddenly sickened. He died two weeks afterward.

Bat rabies occurs in almost all states, but the incidence of the disease in other animals is not as widespread and is concentrated only in certain areas.

The reservoirs of rabies in wild animals represent a constant source of infection that can spread to domestic animals and people. Except for bats, however, most of the small wild mammals that carry the disease do not travel very far. And so, barring major epidemics, rabies in various species will continue to be concentrated in some regions and absent from others.

Prepare prisoners for 'outside'

Better jobs, wages for inmates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Illinois is among three states giving prisoners better jobs than stamping out license plates — and paying them standard wages — in an experimental effort to prepare inmates more effectively for outside careers, a federal agency said Sunday.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration said Connecticut, Minnesota and Illinois are taking part in the $2 million, federally-funded venture aimed at eliminating meaningless prison work. Some prisoners in the new program earn up to $10,000 a year, it said.

"Making brooms and stamping out license plates — the stereotyped prison industries — may be heading for extinction," the LEAA said.

ILLINOIS WILL use its $450,000 grant to open an auto body shop, a data programming business and a graphics business and expand a mattress shop at Joliet, and expand a furniture refinishing plant at Sheridan.

State officials said the furniture plant expansion will enable it to increase production by 80 per cent and boost monthly sales from $6,000 to $10,000.

"If we are going to get these men back into the community, we have to give them a proper work experience," said Warden Carl Robinson of the Connecticut state prison at Somers. "The wages are important. But, also, it is demeaning to do meaningless prison busy work."

Connecticut will spend some of its $498,193 LEAA grant to lease modern equipment for its print shop, hoping to boost sales from $86,000 a year to $400,000.

MINNESOTA HAS experimented with the new concept for two years while modernizing its prison industries.

"Our track record shows that this is all going to work," said Stanley Wood, Minnesota prison industries director. "Private industry here has already shown that if you pay people a standard wage they're motivated to produce."

One firm that provides prison food services pays Minnesota inmates $2.50 an hour and another runs a computer programming shop in which inmates earn up to $10,000 a year, the LEAA said.

Minnesota will use its $498,193 grant to bring in more industries, one a shop for making fireplace logs of wood chips. With eight workers, it expects to gross $60,000 the first year. Another employing 50 inmates to repair school buses expects to gross $600,000.

Mortgage lenders unfair to older city areas: official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is the neighborhood where you live homogeneous?

Are the residents roughly the same in race, ethnic background, income, age, education and life style? Are the houses about the same in price, size, age and architecture?

If the answers are "no," according to congressional testimony, mortgage lenders probably consider your neighborhood a poor risk.

Darel E. Grothaus, director of housing policy for Seattle, Wash., told the Senate Banking Committee Thursday the two federally sponsored corporations on home mortgage lending tend to discriminate against older neighborhoods, those of a mixed nature and those undergoing change.

THAT, HE said, makes it harder for cities to revitalize themselves.

Both the Federal National Mortgage Assn., generally called "Fannie Mae," and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., known as "Freddie Mac," buy home mortgages from banks and other primary lenders.

Grothaus said the problem starts with appraisal and underwriting standards used by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

"If the families in a neighborhood are congenial, the neighborhood generally has strong appeal and stability. When the residents are of varied economic, social and cultural backgrounds, the appraiser must determine whether this lack of homogeneity reduces the neighborhood's desirability to present and prospective occupants."

A SOCIETY manual tells appraisers to check for houses of similar price, style, utility, quality, age and size; for resident income in the same general bracket; for residents of similar cultural, educational, ethnic and social backgrounds; and for similar land use.

Textbooks of both professional groups, say most older urban neighborhoods eventually deteriorate because the wealthy leave, the poor move in and values decline, says Grothaus.

He said teaching helps to make it so.

"Entire neighborhoods may be declared totally ineligible for loans because of appraisal standards which presume the inevitable deterioration of neighborhoods," Grothaus said.

Although the agencies are not supposed to exclude entire neighborhoods or inquire into racial composition, they use forms asking whether a neighborhood is homogeneous in property prices, type of occupancy, architectural style, land use and age of homes, Grothaus said.

The practice goes beyond hard-headed business and into the realm of "private value judgments," he said, urging Congress to change the policy.

Hope Christmas show runs tonight

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Can you picture Scrooge going to a psychiatrist because he's getting too fond of Christmas? And John Wayne as the psychiatrist?

Put Bob Hope in the role of Scrooge and it becomes almost logical, the sort of zany humor you can expect on the Bob Hope Comedy Christmas Special on NBC from 7:30-9 p.m. today.

The show boasts an enormous cast, including not only Wayne but Lola Falana, Neil Sedaka, Dyan Cannon, Kate Jackson of "Charlie's Angels," and assorted beauty queens from Miss Teen-age American to Miss America to the 1977 Tournament of Roses queen. Nobody ever complained about the decor on a Bob Hope special.

"WE PUT A lot of accent on Christmas," Hope said.

"Dyan will play Mrs. Claus in one skit. She's a little suspicious about where I go every year. Lola does a cute spot in which she plays a kid in Harlem at Christmas time. We're a couple of poor kids bemoaning the fact that our Christmas isn't too great. And I'm doing 'Silver Bells,' a thing I do annually, with Dyan Cannon."

This is the fourth year that Hope is home for Christmas — from World War II until four years ago Hope would do his Christmas show, then he and his gang would line up for their shots, and off they'd go to entertain American servicemen somewhere overseas.

"It seems awfully natural now," Hope said, "but it was strange that first year. What's really a nice feeling is to think there's nobody fighting."

HOPE HASN'T forgotten the men he used to play for overseas.

"I'm playing three or four hospitals," he said. "They request these things — there are a lot of veterans in those hospitals that I've seen over there. Last year I played eight or ten hospitals."

Bing Crosby won't be popping in on the Hope show for a brief spot the way they used to trade those vignettes in the movies, Hope said, although he wished that were possible. But Crosby's own Christmas special just aired on CBS and his contract forbids his appearance on another show within a few weeks of his own air date.

That doesn't mean the old team has broken up.

"Bing and I are working on a script right now," Hope said. "The working title is 'The Road To Tomorrow' — another 'Road' picture. It takes place in England and Saudi Arabia, so you know it's something to do with gas. And both of us could use a little of that."

Denver dumps Payton and Bears, 28-14

by KEITH REINHARD

Chicago Bear hopes for their first winning season in more than ten years were swept away among the strong icy winds dancing off Lake Michigan Sunday afternoon.

Limping as a unit, the Bears were crushed under a 21-point fourth quarter barrage and lost their season final to the Denver Broncos, 28-14.

Also buried beneath the frigid weather, the injuries and frisky Bronco ballclub was Walter Payton's shot at the National Football League's 1976 rushing title. Payton hobbled off the field for good late in the third period, far off his normal game pace, with 49 yards in 14 carries. O.J. Simpson won the rushing title with 1,503 yards.

THE ROOF caved in shortly afterwards. "Everyone was disappointed today . . . especially Walter," offered head coach Jack Pardee when the game was over. "This is a team we should have easily beaten but we got awfully banged up out there today and we just didn't have the personnel to hold Denver off."

The Broncos absorbed their share of punishment as well. A portion of it turned out to be a blessing in disguise, however. When starting Denver quarterback Craig Penrose was carted off their field seven plays into the game, his replacement was an obscure Mississippi grad named Norris Weese who almost singlehandedly pulled off the win for the guests.

A World Football League castoff, Weese rushed for 120 yards and passed for 100 more Sunday, including a 13-yard scoring strike, as the Broncos made their first regular season visit to Chicago a successful one.

ALSO PLAYING a key role was Otis Armstrong, who carried for 116 yards to crack the 1,000 mark for the season.

Chicago hit the scoreboard one play into the game and typically it was a defensive maneuver accomplishing the feat. Cornerback Allan Ellis snared a Penrose pass and returned it 22 yards to the end zone.

The Bears scored again in the second period on a 21-yard dash by Payton. It was his 13th TD of the season, putting him one behind club record holder Gale Sayers.

It was all downhill for the hosts after that. Jon Keyworth hauled in a 13-yard Weese pass for a score in period three and Rick Upchurch broke loose on a 19-yard touchdown run two minutes into the fourth period that knotted the game at 14-14.

NEITHER SIDE did much moving after that until the Broncos took over at 6:06. Weese went up the middle on third and ten for 15 yards and Armstrong hit the line on the next play for 13 more.

One play later Weese hit Upchurch again for a 43-yard gain down to the 11 and Armstrong went over on his next try.

With three minutes to go in the contest the Bears still nursed hopes of a comeback but Bob Avellini was sacked, fumbled, and Denver recovered. The Broncos then added an insurance touchdown on a 12-yard scamper around end by Riley Odoms.

In addition to Payton, the Bear injury list for the game included Wally Chambers, Ellis, Waymond Bryant and Don Rives, pointing to the fact that Chicago's much improved club this fall did have a glaring weakness: depth.

ALSO OVERLOOKED to a great extent by the disappointed 44,459 fans on hand Sunday was the fact that the Bears were playing a respectable Denver ballclub that had lost only five previous games this season and sported one of the strongest defensive units in the conference.

The final statistics showed the Broncos totally dominating action with 356 yards rushing to 116 for the Bears and 107 yards rushing to 64 for Chicago. Denver also out-firstdowned the Bears 26-5.

Walter's bid for rushing honors comes up short

by ART MUGALIAN

Walter Payton ended up on his back Sunday afternoon, but that's not the way Bear fans should remember him.

Little Walter wanted ever so badly to win the National Football League rushing title — more out of a feeling of loyalty to his Bear teammates than from any hope of personal glory. When a third-quarter injury forced him out of the game, Payton left the field covering his face with his hands.

His season was finished; he knew it. Worse, the Bears were finished too, and Payton must have been able to sense it. When he left, the Bears were ahead, 14-7. At the end, they were 28-14 losers.

HIS FIRST WORDS to a waiting press were: "In my mind, the most important thing was winning the ball game. I was going to take myself out of the game because it was hurting the team effort."

Payton didn't have to remove himself because Denver's Tom Jackson did it for him. The 220-pound fourth-year linebacker leveled Walter with a jarring tackle at the line of scrimmage with 2:45 left to play in the third period.

While Payton lay sprawled on his back, unable to get up due to extreme pain in his twisted ankle, the public address announcer was telling the crowd that there was a new rushing leader in the NFL: Buffalo's O.J. Simpson had just run 44 yards for a touchdown in Baltimore. Payton was no longer in first place.

A hushed, almost reverential sigh arose from the collective throat of 44,459 Bear fans when they realized it was little Walter laid out on the artificial turf of Soldier Field.

PAYTON WOULD run no more this day. Walter was "out for the season."

It was not such a good day for Walter, either. Stopped for no gain the first time he carried the ball, Payton managed 45 yards in the first half on 11 tries.

Twenty-one of those yards came on a draw play that went for a touchdown late in the second quarter. It was the only time in the game that there weren't 10 or 11 Broncos waiting for Payton at the end of his run.

"I DON'T THINK Denver was keying on me any more than usual," said Payton after the game. "I think they were playing their normal defense."

That "normal defense" held Payton to 49 yards in 14 attempts before the injury. For the season, Walter finished with 1390 yards, second in the league behind Simpson's 1503.

"I just told Walter that that's the way God wanted it to be," said teammate and fellow running back, Roland Harper.

Payton was quiet after the game, although he is quiet after every ame — win or lose. He emerged from an especially long shower with a towel wrapped modestly around his muscular torso and headed for his locker where a bevy of reporters waited almost apologetically.

"I DON'T KNOW what happened on the play I got hurt on," Payton said in response to a question. "I'll want to look at the game-films on that one."

Bears' coach Jack Pardee said he knew what happened.

"Walter got hit awfully hard on that play," said Pardee. "I was sorry that he couldn't get the title. He wanted awfully bad to run well today. He put a lot into it, he worked hard all week, and he's pretty disappointed."

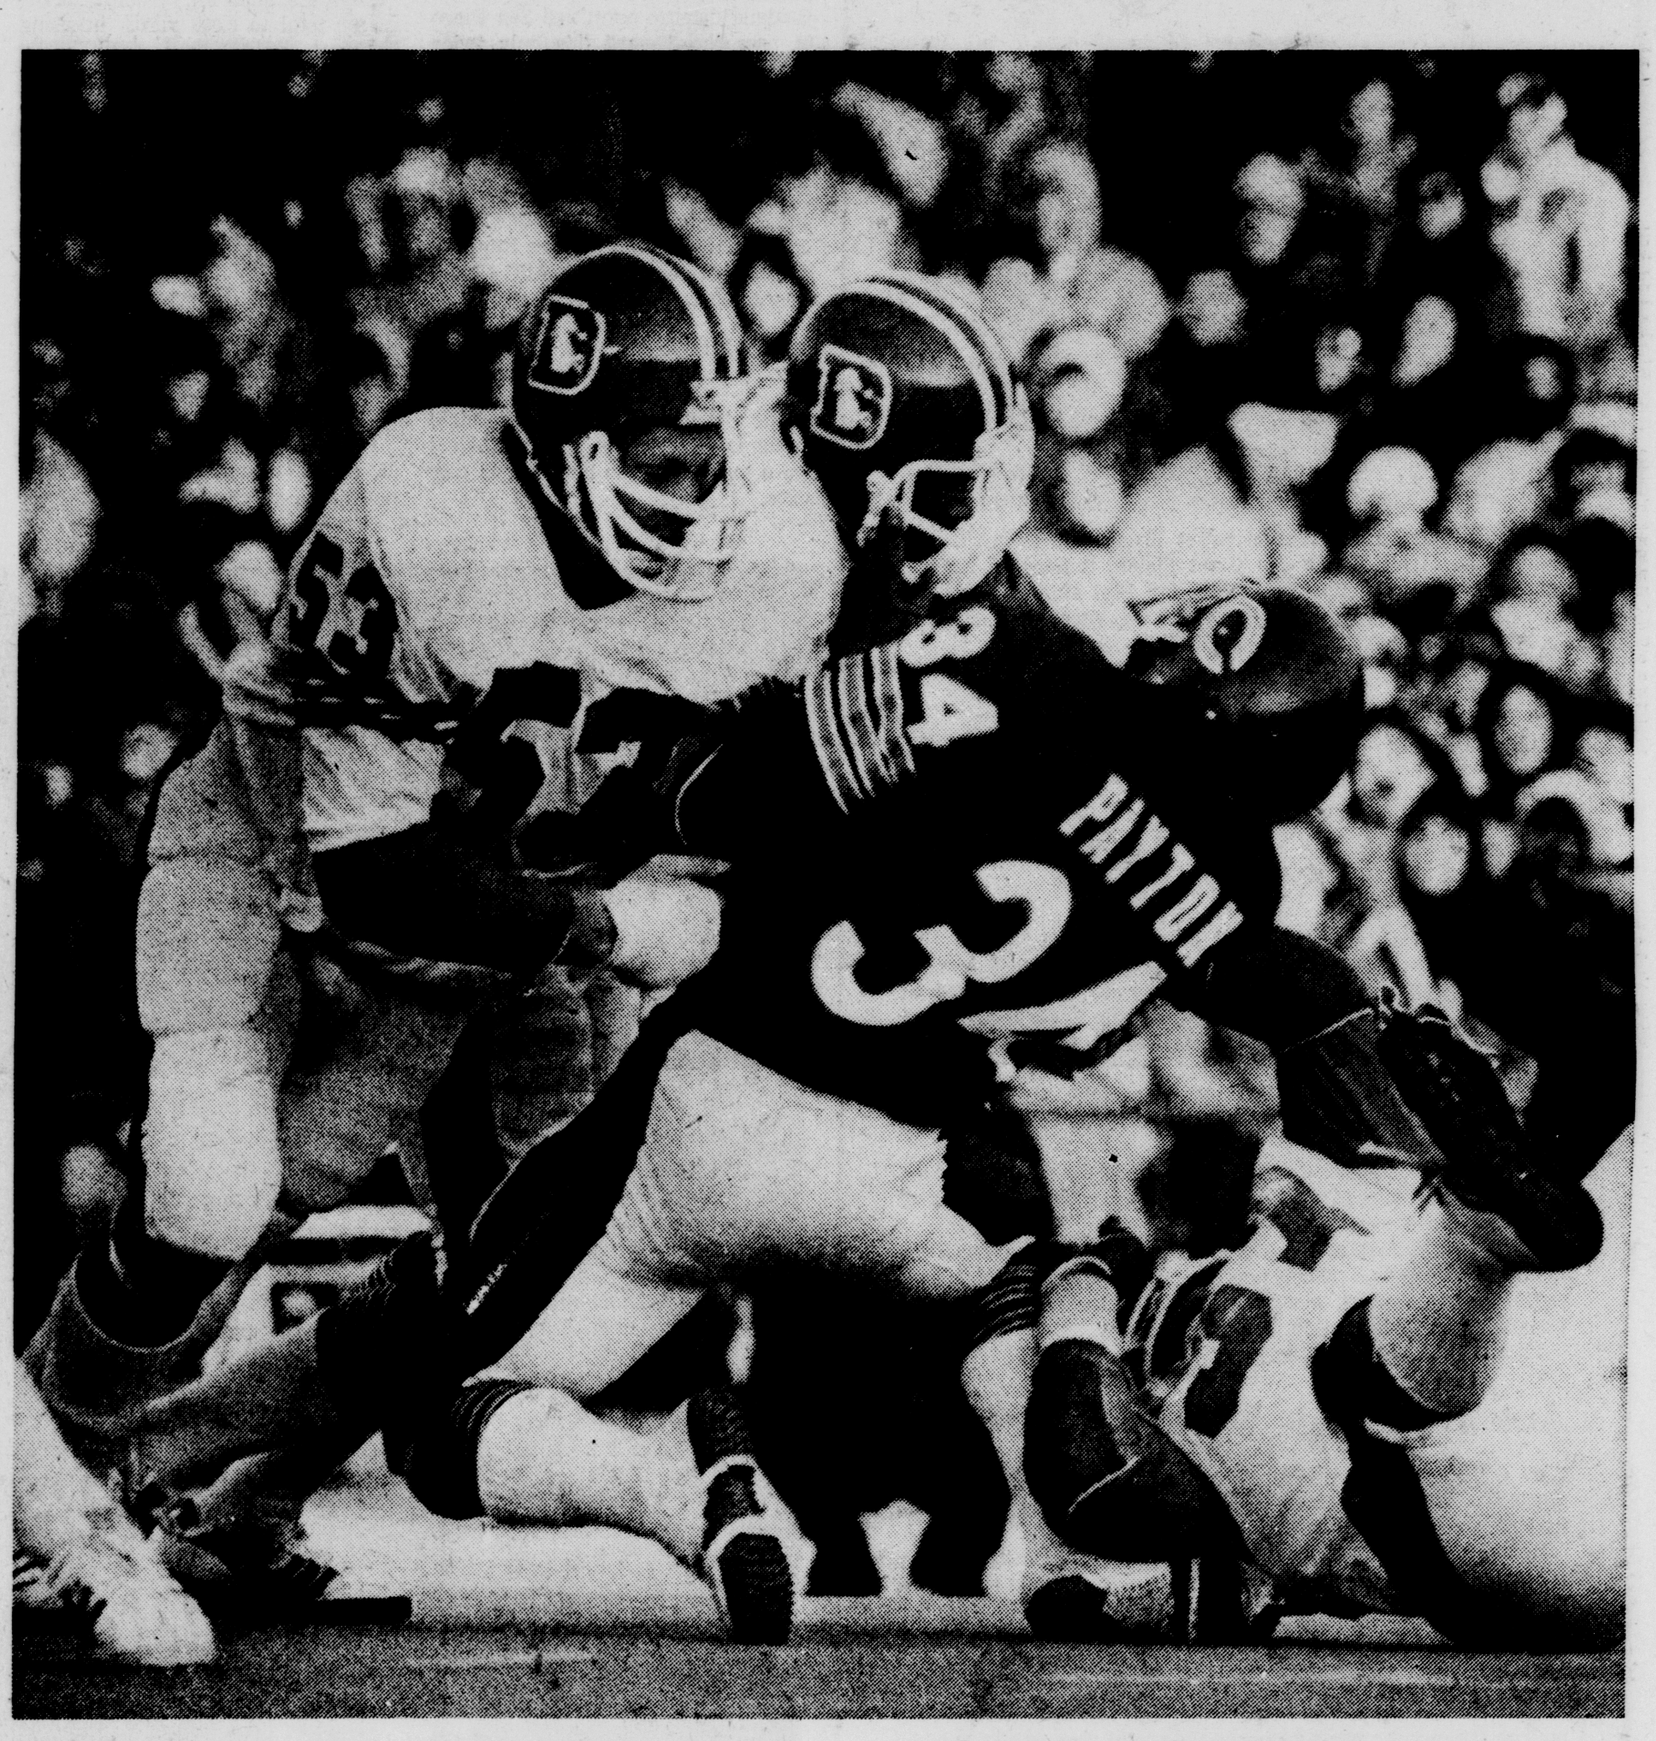

Payton, for his part, praised his offensive line and admitted that, as a unit, the linemen were over-agressive.

"They wanted me to win the title more than I did," said Walter.

Payton started the day nine yards ahead of O. J. Simpson. He finished 123 yards behind O.J. The yardage didn't seem to mean much to Walter.

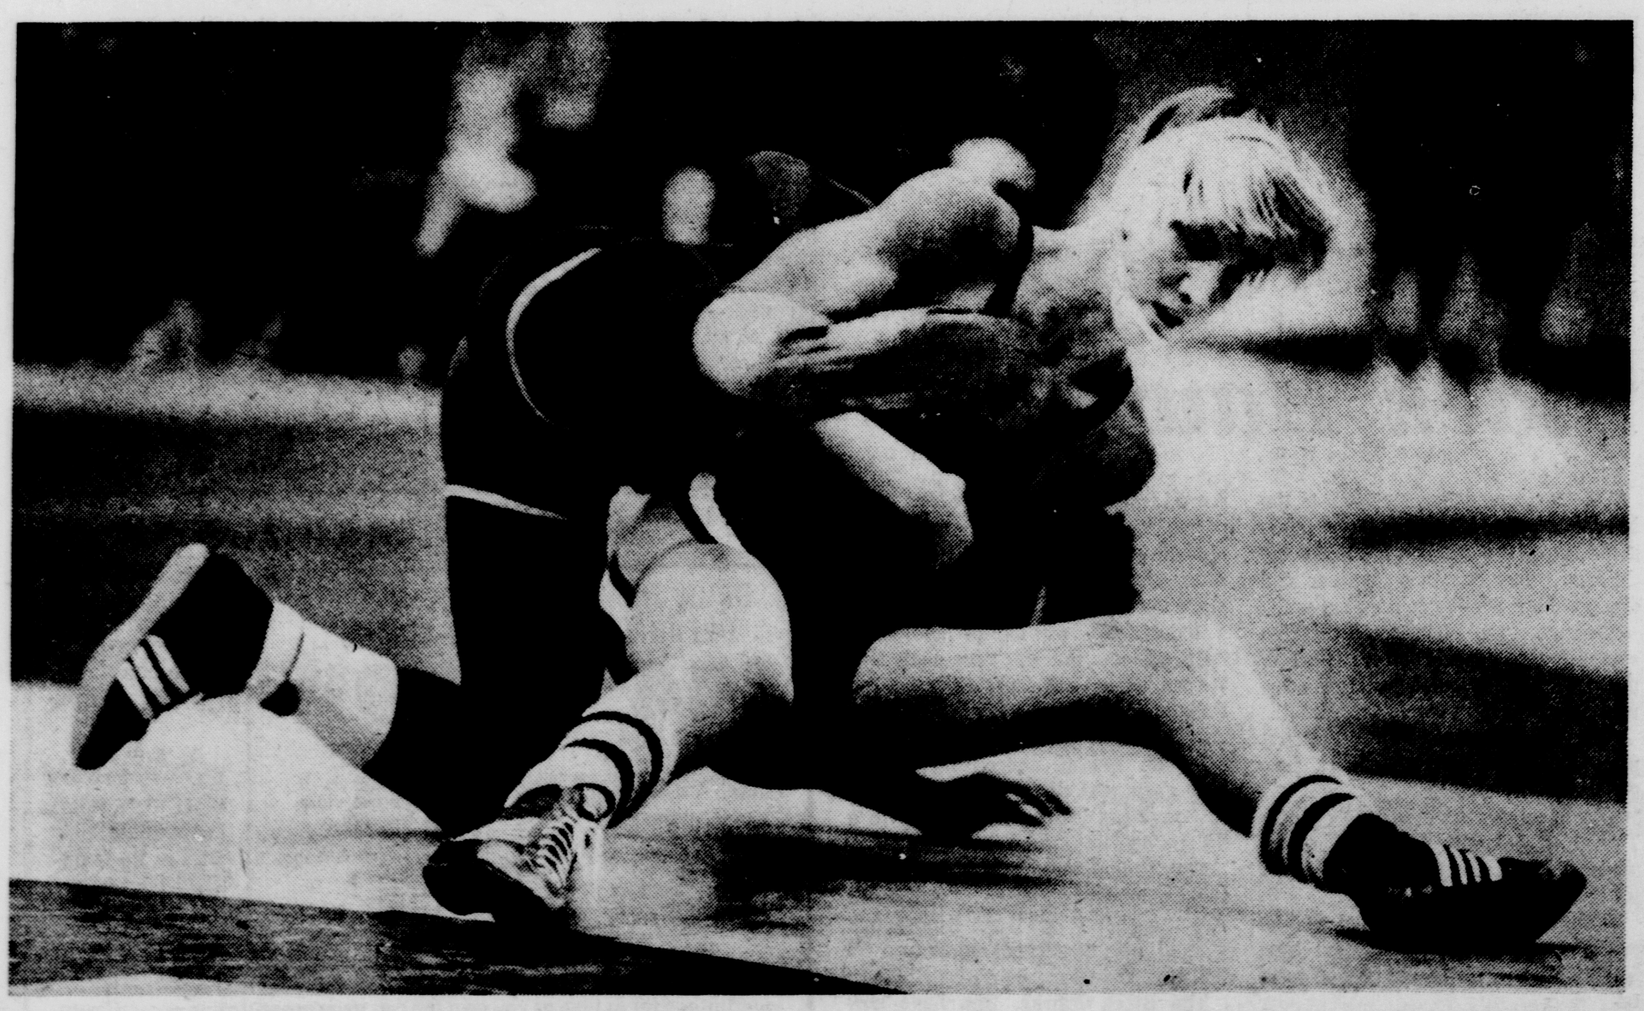

"When I hurt my ankle I realized that I wasn't going to be able to compete anymore," said Payton in his soft, articulate tones. "And that's what hurt the most — that I wouldn't be able to compete, to help the team."

Walter Payton was on his back for only a minute Sunday.

PAYTON'S PLIGHT. A common scene at Soldier's Field Sunday was Chicago's Walter Payton (34) being brought to the turf quickly by a rugged Denver Bronco defense, led here by Randy Gradishar. Payton collected only 49 yards in the contest and lost the NFL rushing title to O.J. Simpson while his Bears were losing to the Broncos, 28-14. (Photo by Jim Frost)

St. Viator handles Palatine, Fremd topples Conant

STELLAR START. Buffalo Grove's Bob Koontz made his varsity debut Saturday at the Rex Lewis Team Wrestling Tournament and fashioned an 8-6 win over Bill Johnson of Bloom at 138 pounds to help his Bison outfit win their battle for third place in the meet.

Lion defense clicks, offense sputters in win over Pirates

A Herald Staff Report

For weeks, St. Viator basketball coach Ron Cregier has worried about his team's defensive play but was fairly confident of his offense.

Now he's not so sure.

For the Lions performance against Palatine Saturday night, even though the final result was a 48-44 Viator win, featured a mixture of pressure defense and a sputtering offense that sputtered just enough at the end to pull out a win.

THE BIGGEST difference in the contest was a player who rode the bench during the final 2½ minutes of play and a free throw that was in, yet wasn't in.

Palatine's Kevin McKenna, a one-man team who brings the ball down the court then goes to his center position, fouled out shortly after his three-point play pulled the Pirates to within three.

But Palatine kept coming at the Lions and had a chance to pull within one when Mark Linsner stepped to the free throw line with 36 seconds left, hoping to complete a three-point play. Linsner's shot went in, then was disallowed because of a lane violation by Palatine.

So with the score 46-44 in Viator's favor, the Lions put the ball in play and ran the clock down to 16 seconds and Palatine was forced to foul. Junior Rick Sanders stepped to the line for Viator and calmly pumped in both ends of a one-and-one to give the Lions a four-point cushion and the game.

"WE WERE LUCKY," said Cregier. "With McKenna in there at the end, it could have been a different ballgame."

Actually two Pirates were on the bench in the critical final two minutes. Besides McKenna, 6-2 senior Bill Landeene had left with his fifth personal midway through the final quarter.

But the Lions also had foul problems in the contest, which saw 49 fouls whistled, 35 in the final half which resembled a barroom brawl at times.

Steve Notaro, who moved out to guard from his regular forward slot, spent half of the third and a good part of the fourth period on the bench with four personals, and Mike Comerford fouled out midway through the final stanza.

THE LIONS also had to go without the services of Paul Rogozinski, their top rebounder who watched from the stands with an ankle sprain.

The Viator defense held McKenna,

'Skins make playoff with win over Dallas

Four weeks ago the Washington Redskins were close to being eliminated from the National Football League playoffs for the second straight year.

On Sunday Washington completed a comeback from that low point with a 27-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys that sent the Redskins into the playoffs. It was Washington's fourth straight triumph since losing 12-9 to the New York Giants on Nov. 14.

The victory set up a trip for the Redskins to Minnesota for a first-round playoff game next Saturday and eliminated the St. Louis Cardinals from post-season play for the first time in three years.

CALVIN HILL hurt his former teammates with a 15-yard touchdown run with 4:34 left that gave Washington a 20-14 lead. Moments later lineman Dennis Johnson clinched the game for the Redskins by intercepting a Roger Staubach pass at the Dallas three-yard line that set up John Riggins' three-yard TD run.

St. Louis, which beat the Giants 17-14 earlier Sunday to keep its playoff hopes alive momentarily, finished with the same 10-4 record as Washington. But the Redskins earned the NFC's wild card playoff berth by beating the Cardinals twice this season.

Dallas, the NFC East champions with an 11-3 record, hosts the Los Angeles Rams next Sunday in a first-round game. The loss to Washington, however, robbed the Cowboys of a potential home field advantage for the NFC title game should they defeat the Rams and the Redskins beat Minnesota.

In the AFC first-round playoff games, New England travels to Oakland next Saturday and Baltimore hosts the two-time defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday.

STEVE JONES scored his second touchdown of the game on a one-yard run with 6:15 left to rally St. Louis past the Giants.

Backup quarterback Mike Rae passed for three touchdowns and the Oakland defense permitted San Diego to pass the 50-yard line only twice Sunday to lead the playoff-bound Raiders to a 24-0 victory over the Chargers.

The triumph gave the Raiders a 13-1 record, best in the NFL this year. The Raiders will face the team that handed them their lone loss, New England, in the first round of the AFC Championship here Saturday.

THE PATRIOTS beat the Raiders, 48-17, in their regular season meeting.

The playoff will be Oakland's ninth in the last 10 seasons, but the Raiders have made it to the Super Bowl only once.

Rae, subbing for regular Ken Stabler, connected on scoring passes of five yards to Cliff Branch and six yards to Dave Casper in the first half. He hooked up with Morris Bradshaw on a 25-yard scoring pass in the third period.

Erroll Mann rounded out the Raiders scoring with a 42-yard field goal in the second quarter.

DEFENSIVELY, the Raiders permitted San Diego to enter their territory once in the first half, to the 44, and again in the early moments in the fourth period, the 21 yard line.

Ed Podolak ran for three touchdowns and became the Kansas City Chief's career rushing leader Sunday in sparking his team to a 39-14 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

Podolak gained 137 yards to run his career total to 3,900 yards, breaking the mark of 3,837 yards compiled by Abner Haynes from 1960 through 1964.

The victory was the Chiefs' first home win of the season.

PODOLAK SCORED on runs of 22 and two yards in the second quarter and added a two-yard scoring dash in the third period.

Rookie Scott Bull passed for one touchdown, ran for another and set up two field goals Sunday in guiding the San Francisco 49ers to a 27-7 victory win over the New Orleans Saints.

Bull completed 14 of 28 passes for 154 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown toss to Gene Washington, who pushed his career receiving mark past 6,000 yards.

Bert Jones passed for 248 yards and three touchdowns Sunday to lead Baltimore to a 58-20 humiliation of the Buffalo Bills and the Colts' second straight AFC Eastern Division championship.

BUFFALO'S O. J. Simpson, who had a 44-yard touchdown run in the third period, gained 171 yards on 28 carries to win the NFL rushing crown. Simpson, nine yards behind Chicago's Walter Payton at the start of the day, finished the year with 1,503 yards. Payton managed only 49 yards against Denver.

Jones hit Glenn Doughty with a seven-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter as Baltimore forged a 20-6 halftime lead, then found Roger Carr for a 36-yarder and Raymond Chester for a 26-yarder early in the third period as the Colts made the game a route.

Linebacker Sam Hunt intercepted a Steve Spurrier pass and dashed 68 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter Sunday, opening the floodgates for the playoff-bound New England Patriots in a 31-14 romp over the winless Tampa Bay Bucaneers.

Hunt's touchdown with just over six minutes to play broke a 14-14 tie. The Patriots then added a 30-yard field goal by John Smith and a touchdown by Steve Grogan.

GROGAN'S SCORE, his 12th rushing touchdown of the season, broke a record held jointly by Johnny Lujack and Tobin Rote.

Tom Sullivan rushed for 121 yards and two touchdowns and Mike Hogan added 104 yards Sunday to lead the Philadelphia Eagles to a 27-10 rout of the Seattle Seahawks in the NFL season finale for both teams.

Sullivan scored first-half touchdowns of four and one yards. Wide receiver Charlie Smith ran three yards on an end-around for another score and Horst Muhlmann added two field goals as Philadelphia finished its season at 4-10.

The Seahawks, whose only touchdown came on a nine-yard pass from Jim Zorn to Steve Largent late in the fourth quarter, finished their initial NFL season 2-12.

Eric Torkelson scored on a one-yard plunge with only 2:20 left to play Sunday to give the Green Bay Packers a 24-20 victory over the Atlanta Falcons in a rain-soaked season finale.

THE PACKERS, who had fallen behind 20-10 in the third period, had cut the gap to three points with 11:20 left in the contest on a one-yard plunge by John Brockington.

Ken Anderson's 85-yard touchdown pass to Isaac Curtis sparked a 21-point second-period burst and rookie Christ Bahr added a career-high four field goals Sunday as the Cincinnati Bengals, eliminated from playoff contention on Saturday, crushed the New York Jets 42-3 in the season finale for both teams.

Cornerback Ken Riley had three interceptions for the Bengals, who finished 10-4 to tie for the AFC Central Division title. But Pittsburgh, which defeated Houston 21-0 Saturday, is the playoff representative after having beaten Cincinnati twice.

Sports world

SWITZERLAND'S Heini Hemmi raises his arm in triumph after winning the Men's World Cup Giant Slalom Sunday in France. Italy's Piero Gros (left) was second and Phil Mahre, 19, of the U.S. was third. Mahre's third place finish was enough to make him the first American skier ever to head the Cup standings.

Spain captures World Cup title

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.—Manuel Pinero, who survived a controversy over a cleaned ball in the second round, rolled home a six-foot, birdie putt on the final hole Sunday after the U.S. team of Jerry Pate and Dave Stockton blew up to help Spain to the team victory in the 24th World Cup Golf Championship.

The birdie gave Pinero, 24, a closing round 68 which more than made up for partner Steve Ballesteros' erractic play and gave Spain the title for the first time with a two-stroke victory over the United States.

Ballesteros, 19, regarded as one of the brightest players on the European tour, finished with a 74 which almost took Spain out of the running for the title.

Ernesto Perez Acosta, 30, a Mexican pro from Tijuana, won the individual title with a 72-hole score of six-under-par 282 and, as a bonus, earned a spot alongside Jack Nicklaus in next year's $300,000 World Series of Golf.

Pate finished at 72 and Stockton at 73.

American leads World Cup skiing

VAL D'ISERE, France—Phil Mahre finished third in Sunday's men's World Cup giant slalom but it was enough to make him the first American skier ever to head the Cup standings.

Mahre, 19, of White Pass, Wash., showed that his victory Friday in the opening giant slalom of the season was no fluke as he took third spot behind two Olympic gold medalists.

The race — the closing event of the Criterium of the First Snow here — was won by Heini Hemmi, the 27-year-old Swiss bricklayer who upset all the favorites to win the giant slalom title at Innsbruck in February. The bearded Hemmi, one of only two semi-pros on the circuit, won both heats for a total time of 2:50.79 while Italy's Piero Gros, gold medalist in the slalom, took second spot in 2:51.92.

Mahre, who clocked 2:52.19, leads the World Cup standings with 40 points while Gros has 31 and Sweden's World Cup holder Ingemar Stenmark, who recovered from a nightmare first heat to finish sixth, has 26.

"It was more difficult to prepare myself psychologically for this race after the excitement of winning the first," said Mahre. "But I'm really happy with my performance. Winning isn't everything, competing means a lot."

Maryland buries DePaul 92-74

Trailing 42-35 early in the second half, the Maryland Terrapins turned the tables on the Blue Demons of DePaul and scampered to a 92-74 win Sunday night.

The Terps took control of the game on the backboards, outrebounding DePaul 47-32 with Larry Gibson snatching 13 and scoring 18 points.

Steve Sheppard led Maryland's scoring with 24 points.

Dave Corzine, the 6-11 Hersey graduate, led all scorers with 30 points, 16 in the first half. Corzine also had 12 rebounds.

Ron Norwood added 19 for DePaul.

Hunt blasts Monza officials

ROME—World Formula One driving champion James Hunt of Britain said Sunday the Italian organizers of last September's Monza Grand Prix deliberately tried to cheat him out of a victory by putting him at the back of the starting grid in a dispute over the fuel in his McClaren race car.

Asked about the Monza race officials' decision to put him at the back of the starting grid in last September's race because his fuel had too high an octane rating, Hunt said:

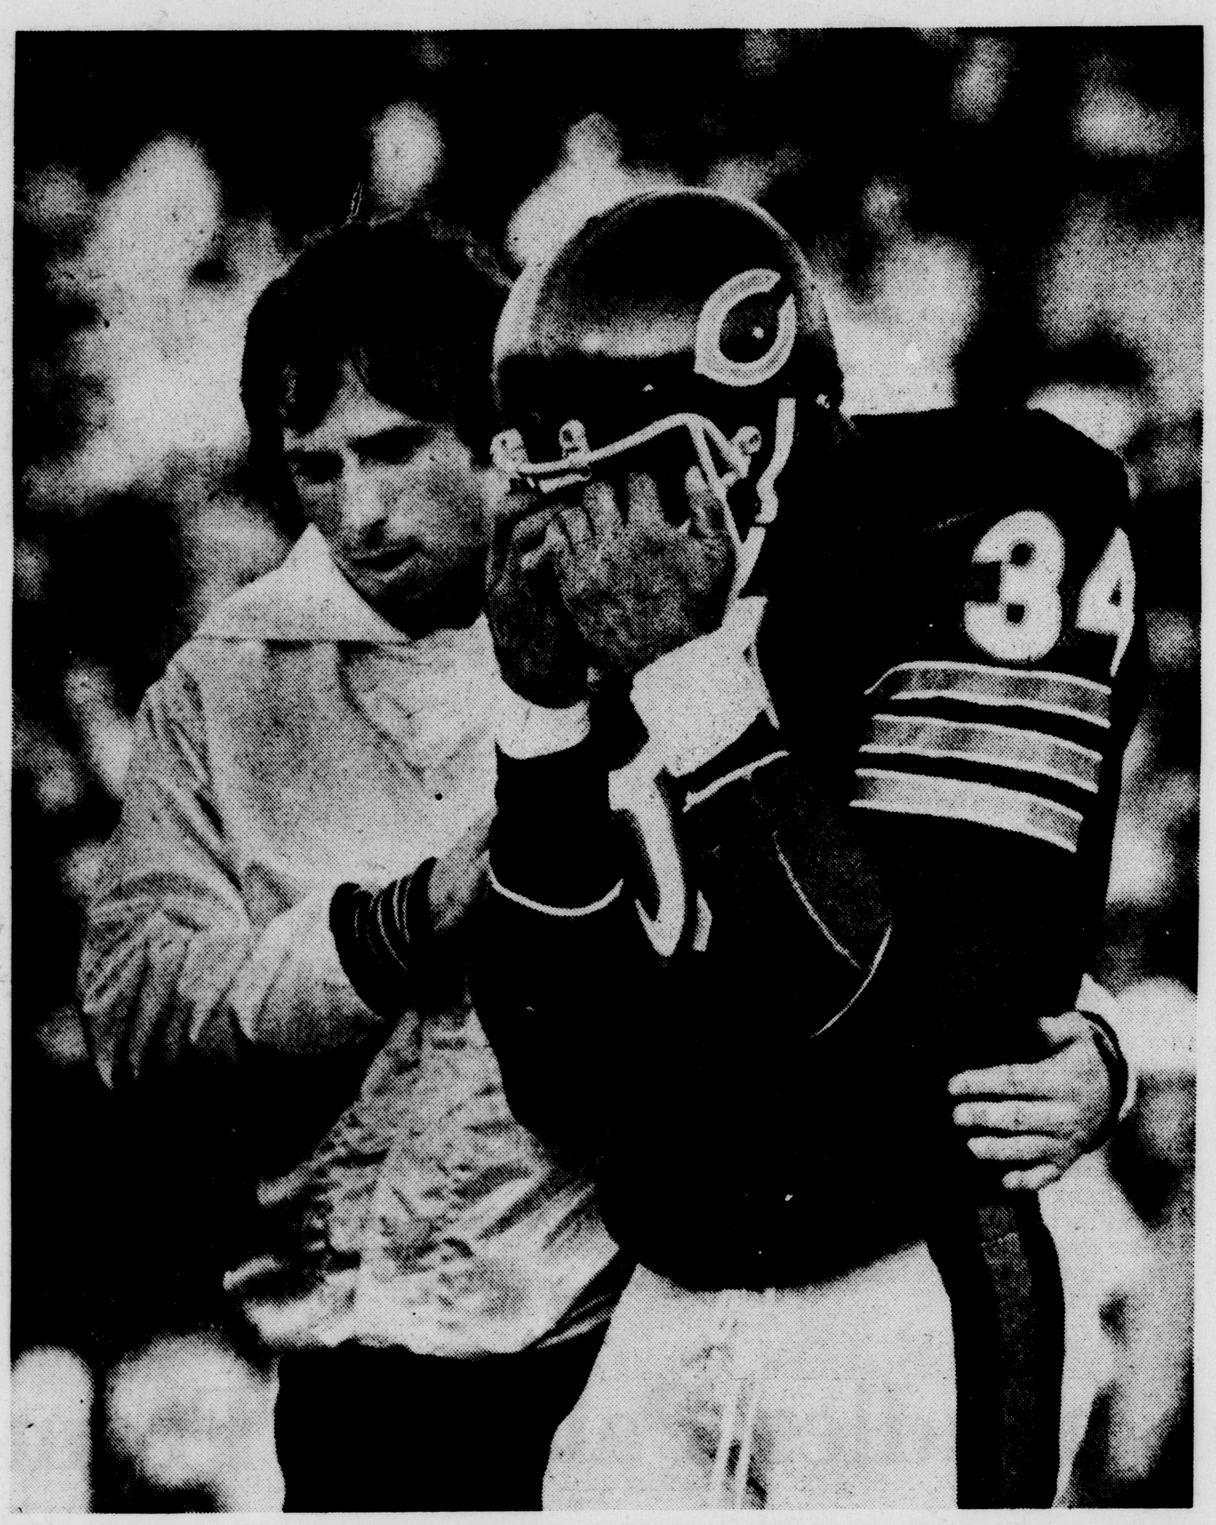

"What they did was an attempt, a very bad attempt, to cheat me out of a victory by putting me at the back of the grid. The gasoline in my car was normal and they knew it."

Hunt's McClaren racer dropped out of the Monza race on the 12th lap because of mechanical difficulties and the race was won by Ronnie Peterson of Sweden.

Orantes wins Masters title

HOUSTON—Gutsy Spaniard Manual Orantes battled back from near defeat in the fourth set Sunday to beat Poland's Wojtek Fibak, 5-7, 6-2, 0-6, 7-6, 6-1 to win the prestigious Grand Prix Masters title for the first time.

Fibak, the fastest rising pro on the tennis circuit, took control in the match early and led two sets to one and four games to one in the turnaround fourth set.

SEASON'S END. Chicago Bear running back Walter Payton is painfully helped off the field by a trainer after sustaining an ankle injury in Sunday's 28-14 setback to the Denver Broncos. Payton left the game in the third period after rushing for only 49 yards, and never returned.

Islanders strand Black Hawks

J.P. Parise and Bob Nystrom of the New York Islanders punched home goals late in the third period to put the Chicago Black Hawks on the sad end of a 6-2 score Sunday at the Stadium.

Nystrom, the Islanders' leading scorer with 14 goals, hit at 18:11 of the third period to round out the scoring.

Parise, who had a goal in the first period, dumped in the Islanders' fifth goal moments earlier.

The Islanders battered Hawk goalie Tony Esposito with 52 shots on goal while Chicago could get only 27 shots off their sticks.

Kurt Bowman's third goal of the season for the Hawks trimmed New York's lead to 3-1 in the second period.

Alan Daigle cut into a 4-1 New York lead in the third period with a power play goal.

In other NHL action, Ron Schock scored from 20 feet at 6:30 of the third period to lead the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 5-3 win over the St. Louis Blues and propel them into second place in the Norris Division.

Rod Gilbert, playing in his 1,000th NHL game, set up two goals for Wayne Dillon and another for Greg Polis as the New York Rangers shocked the Montreal Canadiens 5-2.

Dennis Hextall scored two power play goals and assisted on two others to power the Detroit Red Wings to a 5-3 win over the Boston Bruins.

The Philadelphia Flyers extended their unbeaten string to 11 games as Ross Lonsberry and Orest Kindrachuk scored goals 26 seconds apart in a 7-4 win over Toronto.

The Black Hawks, who have now lost four straight, will be looking for their first win in eight games when they travel to Philadelphia for a game with the Flyers Thursday.

Mid-Suburban North clash Friday

Bison, Cardinals win outside league

A Herald Staff Report

It's still too tarly in the season to put a "showdown" label on any area basketball game, but there's an interesting confrontation coming up this Friday night.

Although some of the glitter was removed by Arlington's resounding loss to Elk Grove last Friday, the matchup Dec. 17 between the Cardinals and Buffalo Grove in the Card gymnasium still shapes up as a fascinating kickoff game to the Mid-Suburban North.

Buffalo Grove plays a non-league game Tuesday night against Glenbrook North.

"WE KNOW WE'RE going to have a tough game at Arlington," said Paul Grady, Bison coach who did scout the Cards' loss at Elk Grove. "The kind of game they had in Elk Grove happens at times, particularly in these cross-overs where it can be hard to play with emotion. And particularly when you have to play them away from home." Grady and Arlington coach George Zigman both were pleased with the performances from their teams Saturday night in non-conerence activity.

Buffalo Grove traveled to Thornwood in South Holland for a 70-67 victory, receiving valuable service again from Brian Allsmiller, and Arlington shook off its Friday night nightmare for a 61-51 victory at Wheaton Central.

BRIAN'S BACK

Allsmiller, who had been sidelined to rest a severe case of shin splints, returned to play about half the game in South Holland and as Grady admitted, "What a difference he makes."

The All-State candidate popped in 14 points and pulled down 12 rebounds in his partial duty, but the Bison demonstrated impressive balance in landing their sixth victory in seven outings.

THE WORK OF Mike Marshall and Phil Czosnyka was vital in the triumph with Marshall turning in his strongest effort of the season with 10 points and 15 rebounds. Czosnyka chipped in with eight points, including some clutch work after Thornwood tied the count at 62-all in the closing minutes.

Czosnyka, Allsmiller and Mike Ledna hit the big points down the stretch with Ledna coming back after sitting out almost three quarters with an ankle injury. Mike came in with about 20 seconds left, was fouled immediately and then hit two pressure shots to give the Bison a comfortable five-point advantage.

"We had a little bit more poise and that made the difference," said Grady. "That's a young team (four sophomores at one time) we played but a good team. You'll be hearing a lot about them in the years ahead."

GRADY WAS pleased with the movement of his club and felt it was their best over-all effort of the new season.

"We just seem to hang in there," Grady said "We haven't been playing up to par, but we somehow manage to get through. We were considerably more aggressive rebounding, but they still gave up too many points on defense.

"I'd say we're playing right now to about 50 per cent of what we're capable. I just hope we can start progressing from here on out."

Scott Groot chipped in with 16 points to lead the Bison with six players scoring eight or more in a sharp show of balance.

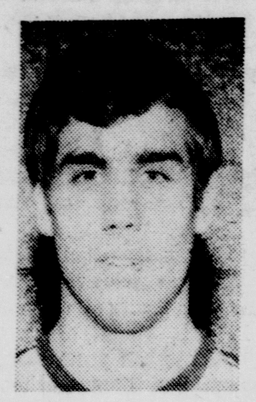

Buffalo Grove cashed for 14-of-16 from the free throw line, a vital statistic as Thornwood had three more baskets.

"The only kid to miss a free throw was Brian," Grady laughed. "And that's all he's really been doing for the past couple weeks, shooting free throws."

CARDS BOUNCE BACK

"The kids were moving, everything just seemed to go better. "We're the type of club that has to come out and scrap from the beginning or we're in trouble. We didn't do that Friday night."

Arlington's Zigman was understandably relieved that his Cardinals shook off a Friday night loss at Elk Grove to dump Wheaton Central by 10 points.

Mike Marshall

Frank DeSimone

By comparison, the Cards hit only 17 of 44 shots against Elk Grove, They poured through 29 of 50 Saturday night in Wheaton.

ZIGMAN MADE some lineup adjustments so he could get a longer look at 6-foot-9 junior Shawn Donahue, and he wasn't disappointed. "Shawn did a respectable job," said the coach. "We're going to start working him in more now because I feel he can be quite a help to us in the second half of the season."

Arlington was up by five with two minutes remaining Saturday but put it away with a couple quick buckets, including a stuff by Dave Kamps who had 10 baskets for the evening.

Frank DeSimone contributed 14 points and another fine defensive game, Greg Kloiber 12 points and Dan Frase 9 points and 13 assists.

NORSEMEN TIP SAXONS

Maine North jumped out to an early lead and put five players in double figures while handing Schaumburg its fifth loss of the season in seven games, 68-56, Saturday night in Des Plaines.

Norsemen center Bob Pfundeheller led the winners with 17 points, followed by Danny and Jimmy Hajost, who scored 13 and 11 points respectively.

MAINE NORTH opened up a 23-18 edge after one quarter and never trailed, although the Saxons cut the lead to three points midway through the third period.

Schaumburg's leading scorer was 6-7 junior John Chmiel, who funneled in 22 points. Saxon sophomore guard Gary Deigan added 14 points for a personal varsity high.

"Deigan's not a bad little shooter, ' said Schaumburg coach Joe Breault of his 5-9 playmaker. "He hit all of his points from outside when Maine North was in that tight zone."

Breault's team will take a break until Friday when the Saxons host Rolling Meadows in a showdown of 2-1 squads in the MSL South.

"I was expecting the kids to be flat for Maine North," said Breault, whose team had upset Hoffman Estates the night before.

LARKIN THROTTLES FALCONS

Elgin Larkin rallied for 18 points in the third quarter and drew in their defenses to outscore Forest View at a 2-1 clip while charging to a 63-44 triumph over the hosting Falcons.

It was the fifth setback in eight outings for coach Ted Wissen's View outfit, who led 26-25 at halftime. Larkin outgunned the hosts 18-9 in the third stanza and then wrapped things up with a 20-point salvo in the final period while Forest View was again tallying only nine.

THE ONLY Falcon to score more than six points was 6-3 junior center Bob Cameron who ripped the nets for 22. In the meantime, Elgin's balanced scoring effort was led by Joe Thornton with 15 while Mike Henry contributed 10, Neal Cummings 12 and Jeff Huxtable 11.

KNIGHTS FEEL HATCHETT

Aurora West, paced by All-State candidate Larry Hatchett's 32 points, stifled stubborn Prospect, 67-52 Saturday night in a non-conference encounter.

Aurora, Class AA state runnerup last year, has molded another powerhouse around returning starters Hatchett and junior center Bruce Johnson who contributed 11.

"They have always played good defense," Prospect head coach Bill Slayton said. "You know they are going to play man-to-man, yet you don't appreciate it until you see it."

PROSPECT WAS not intimidated by Aurora's reputation, though as the Knights battled within two at the first quarter, 14-12 and trailed just 31-26 at halftime.

But Aurora doubled its advantage after three bells and cruised home behind a 17-12 scoring edge in the final period.

"We did a good job on the boards against them," Slayton said while reflecting the Knights' 35-33 advantage. "We had 16 offensive boards to their four, but we couldn't get ours to drop."

Paul Izban's dozen paced a balanced Prospect scoring attack that featured two sophomores and two juniors in the starting lineup.

Brad Millar contributed 11 for the Knights while Jim Apuzzo hit for 10, Dave LaCosse nine, Jay Loos six and Steve Mather four.

Addison Trail wins Evanston Invite; Meadows takes second

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Addison Trail won two medals in each event Saturday and Ron Ortman's 7.16 won the all-around as the Blazers held off Rolling Meadows and Hersey to win the 15th Evanston Invitational.

Addison Trail, which has been consistently over 140 points in their dual meets this year, took the lead after the first event, never trailed and won with 96.26 points.

Rolling Meadows, paced by Mike Illingworth's 6.84 all-around, finished second with 87.99 and Hersey third at 82.69.

ELK GROVE, the third MSL entry in the meet, took fifth behind the host Wildkits with 80.22 points.

Ortman won the high bar (8.00) and still rings (8.25) to go with his all-around title. Illingworth held a slim .10 lead over Ortman in the all-around as the field headed into the still ring event.

After Ortman's 8.25, Illingworth needed only an 8.20 to win but slipped to 6.55 to finish second. Illingworth was consoled somewhat as he won the free ex championship with an 8.55 and also medaled on the high bar and P-Bars.

Meadows took another individual title when tramp specialist Glenn Johnson dominated the field with an 8.3 score.

HERSEY'S JIM HUCK was almost denied the third place all-around trophy by an error in scoring. But the mistake was cleared and Huck's 6.54 brought him home behind Ortman and Illingworth.

The Huskies did not win any individual championships but got medals from Dean Brown (side horse), Bob Solomon (tramp), Jeff Braddock (rings) and Huck (side horse, and rings).

Elk Grove's Doug Phillips brought a smile to the Grens' fans lips with a 7.50 to win the P-Bars. The only other Elk Grove medalist was Bob Beaupre (side horse).

"THIS MEET PROVES we have some strong individuals," said Addison Trail coach Fred Dennis. "But depth is what wins the state and that doesn't show in a meet like this."

Meadows hosted Hoffman Estates earlier in the day in a Mid-Suburban League dual meet. The Mustangs, using mostly sophomores, turned back the Hawks 105.48 to 71.24.

Prospect also picked up a dual meet win over the weekend, topping Conant 95.34 to 81.98.

Conant's Fred Weihmuller won the all-around with a 4.18 average.

PROSPECT GOT individual titles frm Joe Miller (free ex, 7.75), Mark Mickelson (side horse, 6.4), Mark Norwell (tramp, 7.55) and Brian Hulka (rings, 6.55).

Weihmuller also won the high bar with a 7.75 while Keith Eibel took the P-Bars for Conant with a 6.55.

First black show skater sets example

DENVER (UPI) — The first black featured in a major ice skating show is determined to set an example for other minority skaters seeking a professional career.

"I didn't have a Hank Aaron or a Willie Mays to idolize in figure skating when I got started," said Atoya Wilson, 25, who has been skating for 16 years.

"But I strongly feel that just by appearing in the show, it will serve as an incentive to black and minority skaters who might otherwise never give professional skating a second thought."

WILSON, appearing with the Ice Follies in Denver, said he became interested in ice skating at the age of seven when his parents took him to a skating show in Los Angeles. He said he was so inspired by the show he began skating lessons and at the age of 11 started competition as an amateur.

The 145-pound afro coiffured skater went on to accomplish several firsts. He won the U.S. national novice title at 14 and in 1967 became the first black to receive a gold medal from the U.S. Figure Skating Association.

Wilson had hoped to continue competition and gain a berth in the 1968 Olympics but instead opted to complete high school. After graduation, he attended Loyola Univesity in Los Angeles for two years and then got an offer he couldn't refuse.

Wilson said owners of the Holiday On Ice show, a division of the larger Ice Follies, signed him to a contract which started his career as a professional skater.

"I WAS REALLY kind of apprehensive about joining the show at first," Wilson said. "They travel primarily throughout the southern part of the country which gave reasons to be concerned about how the crowds would react to me."

His first show was at Birmingham, Ala., in 1970, Wilson recalled, "and surprisingly the audience was very receptive. From then on, it has been pretty smooth sailing."

Wilson's special brand of skating has wooed and awed crowds as he seemingly floats across the ice pavements in rhythmic patterns to the tune of rock, jazz and pop recordings.

"I really get turned-on out there on the ice," he said. "It's even more of a turn-on when we're playing in major cities where the audience identifies with the music and kind of gets into it also."

Class A state champs avenge setback to Stevenson

by DAVID HESS

The Illinois Class A state champions, Mount Pulaski, made a 200 mile trip to AA Stevenson for a rematch on their one-point loss last year.

The Hilltoppers' brilliant 29-2 season in 1975-76 was blemished only by losses to Class AA schools Decatur (Lakeview) and the Stevenson Patriots.

An overflow crowd Saturday that included a large contingent from the Lincoln-Springfield area saw a hard-fought, physical battle through three quarters before David Welch grabbed the hot hand, scoring 11 of his 15 points to lead the Toppers to a 65-47 win going away.

Junior Jeff Clements, an AP UPI all-tournement selection last year and one of three returning starters, spread 23 points evenly through four quarters to pace all scorers. David Thompson, a second-team selection, added 18 for the winners, most of them coming from outside. Mark Blaha led the Patriots with 14 points.

MOUNT PULASKI jumped to an early lead before Stevenson came back behind Blaha to lead by a basket at the end of the first quarter. No one was able to go ahead by more than two points through the second quarter and Stevenson, hitting on some fast breaks, carried a 31-29 lead into the half.

"The fast break kept us in the first half," said Stevenson coach Bill Ebenezer. "They had a good zone trap defense until we started to break."

Mount Pulaski had to be content to fire from the outside, which they did with deadly accuracy as the Patriots effectively closed off the middle.

"Stevenson shut down our movement," said Hilltopper coach Ed Butkovich. "They're a well-coached club and we have a tough time against teams that are physical. It was a hard game that was good for our kids. It was good for us last year when we lost, and it is good for us this year."

STEVENSON WAS hurt early in the third quarter when forward Mark Cordes picked up his fourth foul. Cordes, who carried a 24-point scoring average into the game, sat out most of the third quarter. When Mount Pulaski threatened to pull away, Cordes was forced to return and Stevenson pulled to within a basket when he fouled out with nine points one minute after the start of the fourth quarter.

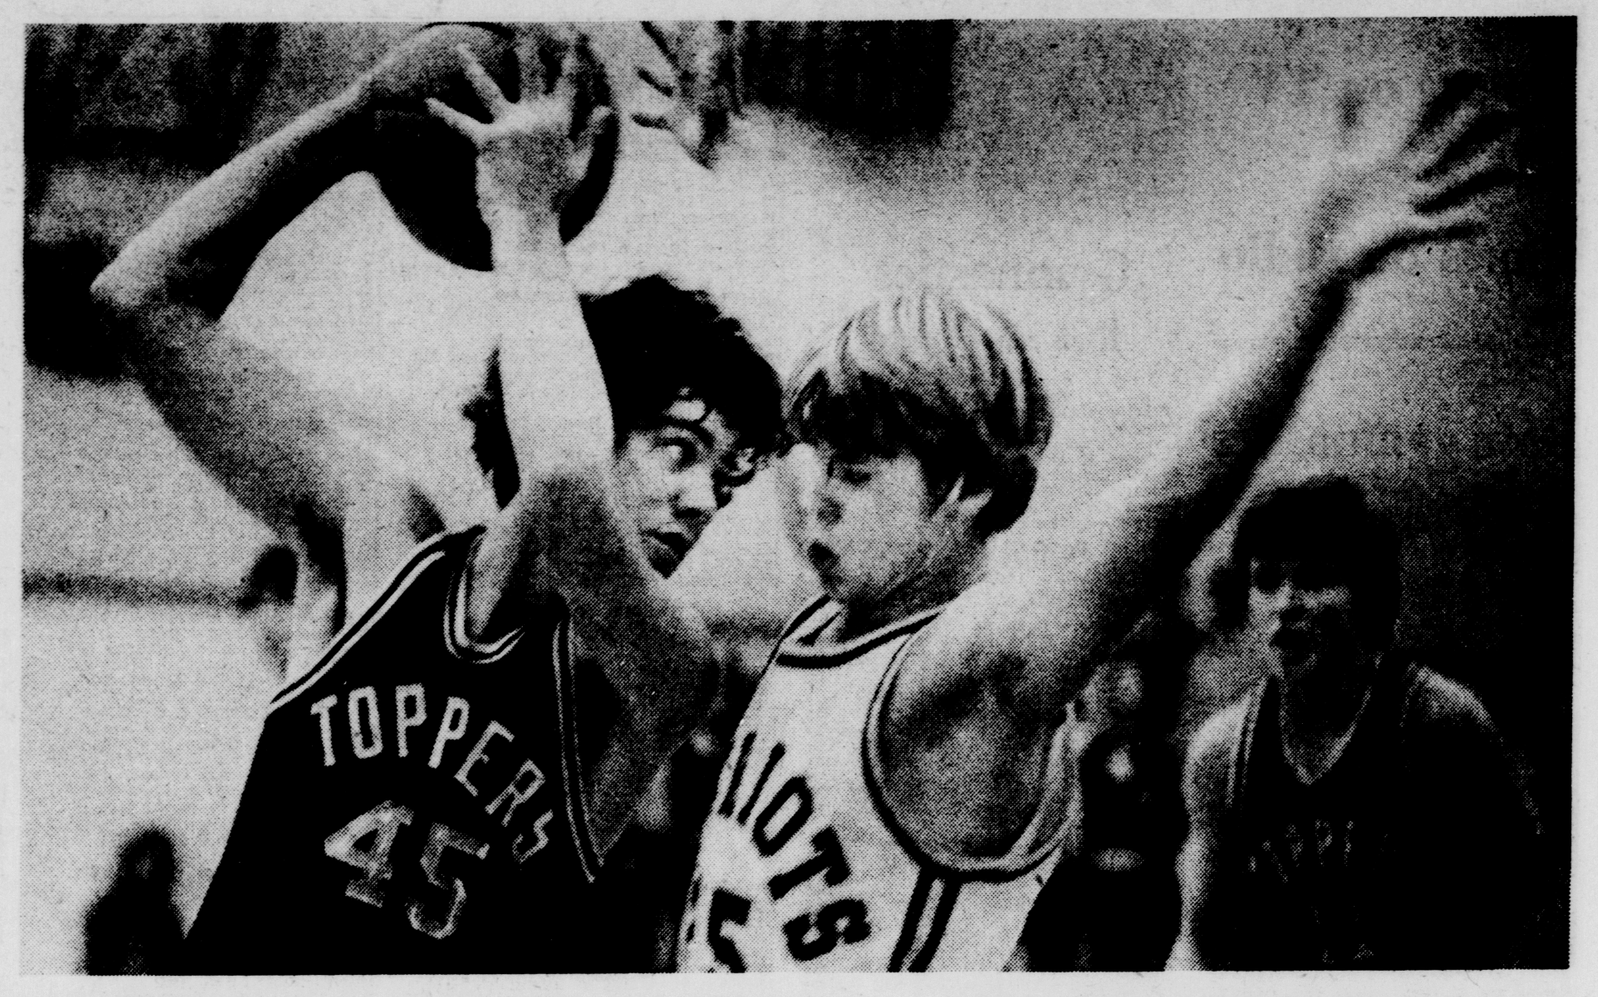

That's when the roof caved in for Stevenson. They were held to just two baskets and a free throw through the entire fourth quarter. The Hilltopper and Welch cashed in on seven turnovers and reeled off 12 unanswered points.

"We just had too many turnovers and were handicapped by fouls," said Ebenezer. "I hate to say it but we had a hard fought game the night before against Dundee where we were down by 14 points and came back to win. I'm afraid we were just exhausted and after they got that first five-point lead, we just ran out of gas and fell apart."

MOUNT PULASKI'S over-all record improved to 6-0, while Stevenson fell to 3-3. The Patriots, however, are 2-0 in the Northwest Suburban Conference, South Division.

Butkovich declined comment on his squad's chances to repeat the state crown this year, saying only, "We're a pretty good Class A team. If Stevenson was Class A, I know they would end up with an excellent record."

Stevenson travels to Jacobs this Friday and will open in the Elgin Holiday Tourney, Monday, Dec. 27, against Downers Grove North at 8:45 a.m.

TOPPER STOPPED. Stevenson's Mark Cordes, right, throws up a roadblock as Mount Pulaski's David Thompson tires to maneuver with the basketball Saturday night in Prairie View. The defending Class A champs toppled the host Patriots, 65-47.

the Pirates' leading scorer, to just nine points in the game.

Junior center Paul Wiloff led the Lions in scoring with 18, 10 of which came at the free throw line.

Neither team could capitalize from the free throw line. Palatine was eight for 21 from the charity stripe while Viator cashed in on only 16 of 31.

VIKINGS RØLL

Frmed galloped to a 12-0 lead out of the starting gate and never broke stride while defeating Dist. 211 rival Conant, 71-51.

The Vikings countered a 26-point shooting spree by Conant's Rob Totten by jamming 11 players into the scorebook, much to the delight of head coach Mo Tharp.

"That's an indication that we were passing the ball well around their zone and unselfishly hitting the open man," Tharp said. "When you're able to get the ball inside against the zone, you're doing the job."

THE VIKINGS slapped a full-court zone press on the Cougars at the outset to help account for the 12-0 splurge. But Conant, with Totten able to shake his man-to-man Fremd defender for layups, severed the Viking lead to 18-12 at the quarter.

"We coasted a little toward the end of the first period," Tharp admitted, "but we got it going again in the second quarter."

In clicking on 26 of 60 from the floor, the Vikings roared to a 19-point gap late in the first half before settling for a 16-point spread at the intermission.

Fremd's 38-25 advantage in rebounds fueld an effective fast break. Leading the Vikings on the boards were Dale Hallberg and Drew Mize with eight apiece and Dave McKinney with seven. Totten's half-dozen paced Conant.

"HE'S A HECK of a ball player," Tharp complimented Totten. "We didn't give him 26 points, he earned them and did a real nice job against us."

Hallberg emerged as the high scorer for Fremd with 11 points, but right behind with 10 were Jeff Curtin and Craig Rawlins. McKinney came off the bench to contribute nine as did Mize with seven.

The triumph upped Fremd's over-all record to 2-4 and kept Conant winless at 0-5.
